BELIEVE LAST MONTH WORST OF DEPRESSION

Substantial Pick-up Indicated for January, Present Report Shows

FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHTER

Public Construction Being Financed—Projects Soon to Be Launched

Washington—(CPA)—While there is no way of course, to appraise accurately one month as against another, the impression prevails here, based on such data as is available, that when the history of the present depression is written it will be found that December, 1930, was probably the lowest month in the cycle.

This is perhaps another way of saying that the pick-up in January, while not altogether as much as might be desired, is nevertheless a substantial one. Public construction is rapidly being financed, which means that work will soon be under way. More than seven hundred million dollars of financing has been provided within the last one hundred days by cities, counties, and townships. Much of this money was voted at the November elections.

These amounts will be steadily increased as the Woods, chairman of the unemployment committee, states that it is very satisfying to look over the reports of the various cities showing that plans are being rushed and work is being done which in the ordinary course of events would be spread out over a period of several years.

December Bad Month

The synopsis of unemployment conditions throughout the United States issued by the department of labor reveals that in December there were further reductions in operating schedules and in the number of employees, but it put this is attributed to the fact that December "is generally recognized as a month in which inventory taking is started and repairs to plant equipment are made."

Winter conditions have interfered with outdoor work in the building trades. Agricultural work which offers seasonal employment to thousands of men was delayed "as was the case with a standstill." The bureau of labor statistics, which measure the returns from more than 42,000 business establishments in 15 major industrial groups, reports a decrease of 1 per cent in employment and a decrease of 4 per cent in payroll totals. The retail trade, however, shows a 17 per cent increase in employment and there was a 2 per cent increase in anthracite mining, with employment gains recorded in agricultural implements, book and job printing, fertilizers, automobiles, tires, shipbuilding and steam car building.

There was unquestionably also a low morale during the month of December but reports show that there has been an improvement in business feeling throughout the country during the first two weeks in January. It is realized that the full extent of the construction program will not be felt for several weeks but that many orders are being placed now for materials and equipment which should be reflected very soon in increased employment in the many factories and business establishments which supply the by-products of major industries. Another significant point made by the employment service of the department of labor is that "the larger industries have low stocks on hand and with a brighter outlook prevailing are ready to increase production schedules which will mean increased employment."

Broadly speaking, the comment made by the government bureau which knew most about employment data is that as the month of December drew to a close "a more hopeful outlook" regarding industrial employment became evident.

Senate Votes $25,000,000 Red Cross Fund

Hasn't Resigned

Secretary Mellon

Deny Rumor Mellon Has Quit Office

Washington—(AP)—It was said at the White House today that there was no foundation for reports published today that Secretary Mellon had submitted his resignation.

Similarly, a denial was forthcoming to the published report that Ambassador Daves would become Republican national chairman, and that Secretary Adams would succeed him in London as ambassador.

The report as to Secretary Mellon was said at the White House to resemble similar reports that have been denied by the administration since March 4, 1929.

It was also denied that George Akerson, who has resigned as secretary of the president, would be succeeded by Ray Benjamin, California lawyer and financier.

The published reports, were described as apparently a combination of all the rumors and gossip that could be gathered together in one sequence.

Administration leaders in congress were a unit in expressing the belief that President Hoover would not call an extra session of congress unless forced to do so by the failure of appropriations bills at this session.

"The president's relief program has for the most part been enacted," said Senator Watson, the Republican leader.

"I know of no one in the administration who wants an extra session. We can, if we will, complete our business by March 4. I am certain President Hoover does not contemplate an extra session."

MURDER SUSPECT AGREES TO RETURN

Waives Extradition to State in Connection With Dentist Slaying

Kansas City—(AP)—Robert E. Davis, suspected slayer, has waived extradition to Wisconsin where he is wanted by Milwaukee authorities for the slaying of Dr. William O. Koehn, shot to death while strapped to a chair in his dental office.

Davis denied the crime. One of three Milwaukee office employees, Miss Myra Hayes, brought here to view Davis and Thomas W. Bolis, another suspect, identified Davis yesterday as the man she saw running from the building shortly after the dentist was shot.

Fred Strang, a Milwaukee police detective, said he intended to prove Davis the slayer by the suspect's dental work.

Davis was arrested here with Bolis, when Dr. E. L. Davis, a Kansas City dentist, identified as the man who robbed him in his office. Mrs. Irene Wendler, Dr. Koehn's office girl and Mrs. Evelyn Dunn, employed nearby, identified Bolis as the man they saw loitering in the building the day Dr. Koehn was slain. He is suspected of being the man who stood in the reception room.

OVER TEN MILLION LEFT BY NASH FIRM OFFICER

Kenosha—(AP)—An estate of $10,163,553 was left by the late W. H. Alford, controller of the Nash Motors corporation, who died Feb. 8, 1930. It was revealed today when an account was filed in probate court by Mrs. Gertrude Alford, the widow.

The schedule of assets consisted of 194 pages, representing the remainder of the estate after all liabilities were paid. Judge R. V. Baker set Feb. 25 as the date for the final inheritance tax hearing.

In addition to his connection with Nash Motors, Alford was formerly president of the council, and was interested in a number of industrial organizations here.

SURPRISE MOVE TAKES HOOVER MEN OFF GUARD

Reconsideration Asked by McNary but Fails to Win Support

Washington—(AP)—The senate today approved the $25,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross relief work. There was no record vote.

The proposal which, sponsored by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, was added to the interior department appropriation bill.

The vote came so quickly that administration leaders who intended to ask postponement of the proposal were caught napping.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, promptly asked the senate to reconsider the vote and then moved reconsideration.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, objected to reconsideration and the amendment stayed in the bill.

Smoot said he knew the provision would pass if put to a record vote and he wanted the interior appropriation bill, to which it is attached, passed.

Fail to Win Delay

He said the measure provided $34,000,000 to be made available for public work immediately and this was the first money the western state would get under the relief program.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, had prepared to move that the Robinson amendment for $25,000,000 to be made the special order of business for Feb. 9. He drafted this proposal after a conference with President Hoover, who has complained that the senate proposal was interfering with Red Cross campaign for $10,000,000.

However, Reed along with other administration leaders was not present when the sudden vote came.

Democratic Leader Robinson said he had no objection to reconsideration but in view of the fact his amendment was acted on after a quorum call, a roll call vote should have been taken today.

McNary would not consent to fixing a time to vote, but after considerable discussion he left the matter for Smoot to determine as he was in charge of the bill.

House Republican leaders today had expressed the opinion that the fund for millions for the Red Cross would not meet substantial opposition in that branch.

THIRD SUSPECT HELD IN MAIL THEFT AT SAXON

Ashland—(AP)—Discovery of a second metal mail pouch label holder in a pile of ashes today led to the arrest by postal authorities of William Auger Jr., 34, nephew of Frank Peters, 20, and friend of Theodore Palmerist, 32, who are charged with the theft of $21,000 in currency and two rings valued at $350 from the Saxon, Wis., depot.

The Auger boy was bound over to federal court for trial after he waived examination before U. S. Commissioner W. S. Cate on a charge of stealing a mail pouch, containing candy and several other articles of little value, from the Saxon depot on Dec. 23.

William Auger, Sr., a farmer on whose premises the burned mail sack was found, supplied $1,000 bond for his son and the youth was released pending trial. Bond of $1,000 was also furnished for Palmerist by relatives, but Augers was still held in default of $2,500 bond.

PARTS OF GERMANY HIT BY HEAVY WIND STORM

Berlin—(AP)—A storm of near hurricane proportions swept parts of Germany last night and today, causing a train wreck on a branch line near Paderborn, doing great damage to shipping in the harbors, unroofing houses and blowing down trees in a number of cities.

The engineer of the wrecked train near Paderborn was blown off the tracks and killed. It was not clear whether the passengers of his train were injured or otherwise involved was not stated in early reports.

In the Elbe estuary the incoming British steamer Vantola, grounded off Neumuhlen and when finally able to proceed collided with several tugboats. She was slightly damaged. A number of other ships suffered in the buffeting of the storm while considerable property in Hamburg was damaged.

KENNETH M'KENNA AND KAY FRANCIS ARE BELIEVED WED

Los Angeles—(AP)—Like that portion of the public interested in their romance, Kay Francis and Kenneth McKenna, featured film favorites, were at sea today.

The couple, after having filed notice of intention to wed, was somewhere on the Pacific, aboard the actor's yacht, "Pamlet Head," bound presumably for Ensenada, Mexico.

And their public, due to the KAY FRANCIS mystery that shrouds the romance, was figuratively just as much at sea, as to whether the cruise of the good ship "Pamlet Head" was a honeymoon or an elopement.

The veil of secrecy covering the romance was penetrated yesterday, if only enough to disclose the legal names of the couple. At the marriage license bureau Miss Francis was revealed as Katherine Gibbs and her intended husband gave his name as Leo Melziner.

While the license obtained here would not hold good outside of Los Angeles, a license could be obtained at Ensenada at a moment's notice. The application for a marriage license indicated Miss Francis had been married twice. McKenna has never been married.

TRUCK DRIVER BURNS TO DEATH AFTER CRASH

Chicago—(AP)—An unidentified man was burned to death at the wheel of a motor truck loaded with steel bars today after a head-on collision with a street car crowded with factory workers. The motorist and one passenger on the car were injured.

The injured Bruno Michaels, 35, motorist, suffered a fracture of the left leg, cuts and bruises about head. Charles Mortensen, 48, laborer, suffered a fracture of his left knee and severe bruises.

The impact was so great that the truck driver was driven through the floor of his cab, down against the engine. The front of the truck crashed through the motorist's compartment of the street car.

The wrecked trolley line broke, falling onto the trucks gasoline tank and flames spread to the street car and truck. It was necessary to move almost a ton of steel bars before firemen could reach the driver's body.

BLAINE ASKS $5,000 TO REPAY ONEIDA FOR AID GIVEN TO INDIANS

Washington—A bill to pay the town of Oneida $5,000 as reimbursement for poor aid given by the town to destitute Oneida Indians, was introduced by Senator John J. Blaine Friday.

Officials of Oneida have written the senator that if conditions continue as they are, the town will not be able to support the indigent and necessitous Indians any longer and then they will have to starve or be supported by local charities.

This winter they are spending some $5,000 to buy necessities for these Indians, the government contributing nothing.

Sensor Blaine asked the Indian bureau to furnish aid, but after a delay of more than a month, the bureau asked the senator for a detailed report on the condition of the Oneidas.

The senator then determined to seek congressional action.

New Wet Chiefs Expected To Appear In Lower House

Washington—(AP)—New anti-prohibition leaders are expected at the capital to emerge in the battle to be staged in the house Tuesday on the wet and dry question.

For the first time since prohibition became effective, the independent house vote and the wet bloc have united in a plan to force a vote.

A plan has been agreed upon. The preliminary skirmishes are to center on efforts to prevent the prohibition bureau from continuing tapping wires, buying alcoholic evidence, and using informers. Efforts will be made to place these limitations in the annual supply bill of the justice department now under consideration.

Should the evidence law these they will seek to send the appropriations bill back to the house appropriations committee, thereby obtaining a wet and dry record vote of the house.

Three members of the house anti-prohibition sub-committee, which previously had generally connected conducted hearings on the bill to with the enforcement of prohibition,

COMMUNISM IS HELD THREAT IN REPORT BY FISH

House Committee Finds Half Million Reds in United States

Washington—(AP)—Fourteen recommendations for dealing with communism, including outlawry of that party in the United States, were laid before the house today by the Fish investigating committee.

Chairman Fish filed the report after an eight-month study of Communist activities. It was signed by himself and Representatives Bachmann, Republican, West Virginia, and Eslick, Tennessee, and Hall, Mississippi, Democrats. Representative Nelson, Republican, Maine, submitted an individual report.

Washington—(AP)—Communism was branded a grave threat to democratic governments and their economic structure in the formal report submitted today to the house by its special Communist investigating committee.

In a summary of evidence gathered in an eight months study in every section of the country, of Communist activities, the committee detailed its findings as a basis of legislative action. Its recommendations for strengthening immigration and deportation laws and federal surveillance of radical activities were to be made public in the coming days.

The group of five led by Representative Fish, Republican, New York, was ordered by the house last spring to inquire into Communist activities. Their report, estimated there were between 500,000 and 600,000 Communists and active sympathizers in this country. Only 12,000 however, were considered dues-paying members of the party.

The principles and aims of Communism are the same throughout the world, said the committee and all take their orders from the Communist International with headquarters in Moscow and "they mean implicitly."

Publicity is Weapon

"The committee is convinced," it added, "that the surest and most effective way of combating Communism in the United States is to give the fullest possible publicity to the fundamental principles and aims of the Communists."

The five-year industrialization program of the Soviet Union if successful, the committee held, would become so great a money making machine that it "may finance Communism in world revolution."

"The purpose of the plan," it continued, "is not to build up but to tear down and destroy."

The committee said Russia had hurt the American manganese producing industry and apparently was threatening the United States grain, lumber and wood pulp industries and anthracite producers.

An individual report was submitted by Representative Nelson of Maine, ranking majority member, in which he predicted Bolshevism could not obtain in this country, but suggested:

"We perhaps need a new attitude of thought and a more liberal approach to some of our problems. The solution of this problem lies in the wisdom of our legislators and in the usefulness of our industrialists."

He recommended legislation to enable the justice department to maintain a close watch on all radical activities, closer administration of the visa system and drastic laws for deporting undesirable aliens; support of organized labor and rigid postal inspection of all radical publications.

Fess Replies To Shouse On Alleged Attacks On Raskob

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Fess of the Republican National committee, answered today the assertion he said J. Edgar Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, had made that the republican committee was attacking John J. Raskob because he was "the leading Catholic layman."

"This is an infamous untruth," Fess said in a written statement issued by the committee. "This attempt to injure the religious issue is made for the very apparent purpose of throwing a smoke screen around the vicious attacks upon Mr. Raskob by Democratic leaders such as Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, and Joseph Daniels of North Carolina."

"The Republican party paid no attention to Mr. Raskob until the public exposure of his sinister plan to impair or destroy the Republican party by vicious and slanderous attacks upon President Hoover and his administration."

"This conspiracy, which has been without counterpart in the history of American politics, was disclosed by a Democrat of unblemished party record, Mr. Frank R. Kent, of the Baltimore Sun, was asserted in the September issue of Scribner's Magazine, that Mr. Raskob had set up and was financing an organization in the nation's capital for the sole purpose of 'smearing' the president of the United States."

"The Republican national committee called the attention of the country to this scheme as exposed by Mr. Kent. Beyond this we care nothing about Mr. Raskob. The Democratic party is welcome to him and all of his millions."

PRICE INQUIRY TO BEGIN NEXT WEEK

Scope of Senate Investigation to Be Determined on Monday

Washington—(AP)—The senate's investigation of the prices of bread and sugar and possibly other food products ordered by the senate yesterday will get under way next week.

Chairman Capper of the Agriculture sub-committee to make the inquiry, said today the scope of the inquiry, the witnesses and the general program would be determined at a meeting Monday. Hearings will be started a day or two later.

Senators Wagner, Democrat, New York, and Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, authors of the resolution under which the inquiry is being held, have been invited to explain their views.

Capper said he believed representatives of the big bread baking companies, which have recently joined mergers and consolidations, should be among the first called.

The committee was particularly directed to inquire into any "combinations in restraint of trade" and Capper said he wanted to find out if any of these combinations have prevented the price of bread from reflecting the reduced prices of wheat and flour.

The farm board has repeatedly said the great reductions in the prices being received by producers for food products should be reflected in the retail prices of food to the public and the committee would study this phase.

DEATH PENALTY ASKED FOR 41 TURKISH REBELS

Istanbul, Turkey—(AP)—The death penalty was asked for 41 of 214 religious revolutionaries being tried before a military court at Menemen by the state's attorney today. For 24 others, among them four women, he asked life imprisonment.

Examination of prisoners before the court revealed plans of the revolutionaries for a worldwide Islamic crusade after restoration of religious rule in Turkey. Their program included a march in Angora under the leadership of 95-year-old Sheikh Essad, decapitation of all republican officials who allow their wives to go unveiled, restoration of Istanbul as capital of Turkey, and the appointment of one of the sons of the Sultan Abdul Hamid as caliph.

All government activities were to be suspended two months so as to devote the time exclusively to reading of the sacred Koran and the study of the sacred Turkish book "Kutub" thereafter the crusaders intended to march into Syria and Palestine, convert the Jews to Islamism and invite all the nations of the earth, including America, to adopt the Moslem religion.

The court hearings are expected to continue for several weeks.

LAWYERS HOLD SOLONS' RIGHTS BEING USURPED

Attorneys Question Right of Court to Establish Own Procedure

SAY LAWS UP TO PEOPLE

"Court Members Hope to Gain Advantage," is Wylie Accusation

Madison—(AP)—Whether laws should be made by the courts or by the people through their legislative representatives was the question raised before the supreme court here today.

Several prominent attorneys appeared in a special proceeding to challenge the right of the supreme court to establish its own laws on procedure and practice.

The point raised by the attorneys constitutes a protest against usurpation of further legislative powers by the courts. Former Gov. Francis E. McEver, one of the group who made arguments before the supreme court, said the court is passing "upon the delicate and difficult question of the extent of its own lawful authority."

The proceedings were based on the constitutionality of Section 25.13 of the 1929 statutes which provides that the supreme court "shall, by rules promulgated by it from time to time, regulate pleading, practice and procedure in judicial proceedings in all the courts of Wisconsin."

Fred M. Wylie, Madison, another attorney who appeared before the court, declared that "procedure lies at the heart of our liberties" and that "matters of procedure are key-stones in the bills of rights from the Magna Charta down to the constitution of Wisconsin."

"The attempt to return to a system of court-made law that in the past has been unsatisfactory to the people," said Mr. Wylie, "is the result of a concerted national program of certain groups to vest more power in the courts because their members hope to gain advantage thereby in their contests with members of other groups."

"People Distrust Courts"

Much of the population not only lacks confidence in the courts but actually distrusts them, Mr. Wylie said. This, he added, "will not be cured by the courts taking or reserving more power. Fear cannot be substituted for confidence and trust. Nothing creates distrust and antagonism quicker than power."

Attorney Wylie added that the supreme court was in an "unusually precarious situation" because five of its seven members were appointed by Gov. Walter Kohler who was defeated by a large vote in the last primary election. The supreme court, he added, "does not enjoy today the same confidence as would a court that had not changed personnel so rapidly and which had been chosen by the people themselves."

Mr. McGovern asserted the constitutionality of the section and pointed out that it has reduced the status of statute law to that of rules of court, changeable in the discretion of the tribunal. The section gives to the court the powers which for many years were exercised by the legislature with the approval of the bench and bar and the executive and judicial departments of state government he said.

Frank T. Boesel and William F. Fischer, both of Milwaukee, members of the supreme court's advisory committee, contended that the court has a constitutional right to establish its own laws and rules on procedure. The constitutional right, they said, was established by the fact that the attorneys who attacked the law have met with adverse decision "at almost the very extent of our judicial history," they said.

PHIL CONFERS WITH INDUSTRIAL LEADERS

Governor Discusses Economic Conditions at Executive Mansion

Madison—(AP)—Gov. Philip LaFollette put into force his program of "associating the resources in leadership of the whole state" when he held a conference with leaders of industry on "general economic conditions" at the executive mansion today.

The meeting was similar to those held recently with railway executive and independent bankers to prepare policies and review operations of the state government.

The following industrial leaders attended:

Ray Smith of the A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee; C. R. Messinger, Chalmers company, Milwaukee; C. W. Nash, Nash Motors company, Kenosha; S. B. Way, the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company, Milwaukee; General Otto Falk, Allis-Chalmers company, West Allis, and L. R. Clausen, J. I. Case company, Racine.

One of the highlights of Gov. LaFollette's message to the legislature this week was his statement that "we must find some way for associating the resources in leadership of the whole state in the task of preparing policies and reviewing the operations of government." All citizens should be privileged to participate in the processes of government, he added.

TEACHERS PREPARE FOR ASSOCIATION CONCLAVE

Milwaukee—(AP)—A program utilizing "Wisconsin talent" was advocated here today for the 1931 convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' association at an executive committee meeting with Miss Blanche McCarthy, Appleton, presiding.

More round table discussions during the convention to be held here Nov. 5, 6 and 7, were urged in suggestions submitted to the 52 sectional chairman drafting the program. Separate meetings for grammar, primary, and high school teachers were also urged.

Among those who attended the installation convention for Miss McCarthy last night were Supt. E. B. Tolson, Wausau; H. W. Kiercher, Sheboygan; Miss Joanna Hannan, Milwaukee; M. C. Palmer, Wausau; C. J. Anderson, Madison; Miss Elizabeth Waters, Fond du Lac; Miss Charlotte Kohn, La Crosse; Miss Lillian McCormick, Superior; R. E. Brasure, Hartford; F. R. Drescher, Fennimore, and E. E. McCormick, Madison, secretary.

WOMAN IN DISGUISE MAY BE STRANGLER, THEORY

Chicago—(AP)—A theory that Miss Eppie Moss, 41, was strangled by a woman disguised in men's clothes was considered by detectives today as they sought clues to the mystery of her slaying.

At the same time they investigated her personal life and habits. The woman was found strangled with a rope in a garage at the rear of her home Thursday.

Many photographs found in the dead woman's apartment showed her garbed in men's sport clothes. Her hair was cropped short in boyish fashion.

A friend of the slain woman said her family formerly lived at LaFayette, La. The Chicago Tribune reported that she was a niece of Col. James A. Moss, U. S. A., retired, a noted author of military textbooks who is now president of the United States Flak association at Washington. Coincidentally the Herald and Examiner said it had learned that the woman with whom she made her home was known to her friends as Miss Belletta Morse but in reality is Miss Belletta Douglas, step-daughter of Col. R. H. Morse, wealthy vice chairman of Fairbanks Morse and Company.

JURORS FAIL TO AGREE IN TRIAL OF EWALDS

New York—(AP)—A supreme court jury which heard charges of official buying against former Magistrate George F. Ewald and his wife reported today it could not agree and was discharged.

The jury had deliberated about 19 hours when it reported disagreement. A similar failure to reach a verdict characterized the two recent trials of Italy and Tommamy, who were accused of accepting money from Ewalds. Dr. Schip has not been tried.

Quakes Continue to Rock Oaxaca Valley; New Damage Results

MORE DEATHS AND INJURIES ARE REPORTED

Score Killed at Miahuatlan, 50 Miles South of Oaxaca City

Mexico City—(P)—An almost continual earthquake, accompanied by loud subterranean rumblings, renewed alarm in the valley of Oaxaca today. The valley was shaken again and again. Some new damage was caused. Advances reached the city from outlying towns and villages of the extent of the disaster which accompanied Wednesday night's quakes.

An emergency first aid brigade was organized today to proceed immediately to Miahuatlan, about 50 miles south of Oaxaca City, by Governor Cortes Lopez, after he had received information of 20 dead there, and a great number injured in Wednesday night's quake. Weeks may pass before other isolated towns in mountainous south Oaxaca state, almost without railroads and telegraphs report their losses.

Dr. Juan Rueda, in charge of the observatory at Oaxaca, telephoning to Mexico City the national meteorological station here, described the continuing earthquakes and subterranean rumblings as "sounding as if many pieces of artillery of heavy calibre were doing continuous firing."

Few Pauses in Quakes
"At the time of filing this message the movements continued with hardly a minute's cessation, after which they return again with the same despicable insistence." The constant rumbling and the accompanying subterranean roar, he said, has caused "undiscoverable panic" among the residents, many of whom have fled to the hills.

Dr. Rueda stated that all the observatory's instruments had been thrown out of order and that he could report only the quakes which he himself felt and heard. He said that 11 bodies and many seriously injured persons were being cared for in field tents set up in the Public park.

In Mexico City three light earthquakes were felt during the day yesterday. The first, the strongest, was at 12:30 p. m. The next at 5:15 p. m., and the last at 10:30 last night.

Dispatches from Miahuatlan, Oaxaca, said Wednesday's quakes were followed by a rain of shooting stars. The phenomenon added greatly to the fear of the Indian natives.

Colima dispatches today stated that the semi-active volcano of Colima had begun to emit smoke and low rumblings. The volcano is about 200 miles south of Oaxaca, which last week showed signs of renewed activity.

SEEKS $1,000 FOR INDIAN MEMORIAL

Monument Would Be Erected in Memory of Late Chief Simon Kahquados

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—A thousand dollars to provide a suitable burial and fitting monument for the late Chief Simon Kahquados, last of the great Pottawatomie chiefs, is being asked of the Bureau of Indian Affairs by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton.

When the chief died on Thanksgiving Day, Rep. Schneider arranged with the bureau to furnish $100 to help the Door County Historical Society give the old Indian a proper burial in the Peninsula State Park. The society to appropriate another $100. Chief Kahquados' body is being kept at Wabeno pending the ceremonial burial in the park, probably in June.

William J. Wilson of Sturgeon Bay, secretary of the Door County Historical Society, wrote Rep. Schneider asking for a larger fund.

"At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Door County Historical Society," he wrote, "the occasion of the chief's burial was discussed, and it was the consensus of those present that the plans for the burial were being made on too small a scale for such a distinguished man. Since the chief is the last of a long distinguished line of chiefs, it was thought that the occasion of his burial should be more elaborate than at first planned, and that it should be possible to mark the burial ground of the chief with a large and fitting monument."

Therefore, Rep. Schneider is trying to get the Bureau of Indian Affairs to increase its fund for the chief's burial to $1,000. Rep. Merlino Hull of Black River Falls had considerable difficulty getting some money to feed hungry but still hungry Pottawatomie in his district, but it has at last been promised him. Rep. Schneider will try to see if it is easier to get money for a dead Indian chief than for living destitute Indians.

The burial place in the state park is to be a historical monument, and the Door county society wants it to be a suitable one.

TROOPS 5-10 VISIT LAWRENCE MUSEUM

Boy scout troops 5 and 10 of St. Therese and Memorial Presbyterian churches, respectively, were taken on a tour through Lawrence college museum in Stephenson hall of Science Friday evening. Gets Letters From Many Valley Trout Fishermen

BY B. A. CLAFLIN
It is gratifying to find that since I began this series of articles pointing out definitely where to go for trout this coming season, I have received a number of letters from Marinette, Oconto Falls, Appleton, Kaukauna, Green Bay and other cities, asking that I continue; and that the clippings were being retained in every case for use when the season arrives, which won't be so far off, after all. It indicates that my information is appreciated, and it encourages me to continue. I would like it if more of you fishermen would write me. Let's make of this a sort of medium of exchange for ideas. Write me and I will give you much more on flies, tackle, etc., than I can in my short newspaper articles. The editors are particularly about space—they won't give me a whole page, although I'd like to have it, and could use it.

I want to speak of a stream, now, that has been fished. I think as long as any one in Wisconsin, and it still has trout. I refer to the Pembina, or "Pembine," as oldtimers call it. Some very good rainbows are taken there each season, in the region of Smith's Falls. The best fishing for them is during late season—say in August. If you use wet flies try the Jock Scott, Silver Doctor and Montreal patterns. There are others, of course, that the rainbows will hit, but I have always had good results using the above, hence I mention them.

If you prefer dry flies provide yourself with the following. Royal Coachman, Ginger Quill, Red Ant, Black Ant, Brown Hackle, White Moth, Wickham's Fancy, McGinty and Queen of Waters. I use them with single dried wings, on number 10 tied down hooks, eyed, not snelled. Do not use the latter. The snells dry and rot in time, and you are apt to lose a good fish which otherwise would not occur.

Snelled flies cannot be presented delicately as can those that are tied directly to your leaders. In using the dry flies, however, be sure and have a bottle of dry fly dope along. At intervals immerse the fly in the liquid and whip it slowly back and forth a few times before making your cast. By so doing your fly will alight and sit with cocked wings as a natural insect does. Then things spell success for the dry fly fisherman. It is infinite pains and knowledge that counts.

Another stream I want to speak of is the Pike river, near Dunbar. I fished it many years ago, but it still has fish although we gave it up as fished out and sought better streams some time ago.

The little south branch of the Pike is also good of late years. We used to fill our creels there with speckled trout in a couple of hours, but the stream became too well known and it, too, became nearly fished out. Now, however, it is coming back, because, I suppose, other fishermen left it is I did. Good catches were made there last season. The best route to it is via Wausau, from which place it is about fourteen miles.

STICKERS

The above face of a grandfather's clock has letters instead of numbers on it. Start counting at the proper point and count a certain number around the circle, clockwise, and check off the letter. Continue doing this around and around the clock, checking off a letter at the same interval each time, until you have checked off the 11 letters. Then, if you have picked the right starting point and the right interval, you will have spelled out an appropriate word.

(The correct answer will be printed in tomorrow's paper.)

CHRISTMAS TREE FIRE PUT OUT BY FIREMEN

A post-Christmas celebration, in which a "gang" of children were taking part in the ravine at the corner of Atlantic and Sampson-sts., ended about 7:15 last night when the fire department was called to put out a blaze which the group had started. The children had gathered a large pile of old Christmas trees and decorated nearby buildings residents of the district called the firemen.

The department laid a line of hose and put out the flames with water.

The department also was called to the city barns about 3:30 when spontaneous combustion started a fire. Little damage resulted, however, as the flames were put out in a few minutes.

SHRINKAGE OF STOCKS RAPID IN DECEMBER

Rally Near End of 1930 Failed to Help Average Much, Figures Reveal

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press

Wall Street, New York—The New York stock exchange bulletin for January, issued Friday, shows the value of all listed stocks on the first day of the year to have been approximately $4,300,000,000 below the level of Dec. 1. This reflected the rapid shrinkage in securities that took place last month and had not been changed in any great degree by the rally which set in near the end of 1930.

The January figures also indicate a drop of $27,000,000 or over 35 per cent from market value in April, when the top of the 1930 rise was reached, and of $15,700,000,000 or about 24 per cent in contrast with those of a year ago. The current values are almost exactly the same as were indicated for January, 1923.

During December the reduction in the market value of listed bonds was $75,000,000. This market had a sharp recovery in the last week of the year which offset some of the depreciation that occurred when bonds were liquidating on a large scale in order to strengthen their cash positions. From the crest of the bond market last September to Jan. 1 there was a depreciation in listed issues of $1,800,000,000. This was about equally divided between domestic and foreign bonds.

Bond Values Same
The total value of all listed bonds on Jan. 1 was almost the same as that at the opening of 1929. What happened advanced for nine months and gained $914,000,000 in that time, losing nearly all of this appreciation in the following three months.

The change between the ratios of stock exchange member loans to the market value of all listed shares was one of the significant features of 1930. This ratio in the early part of 1929 was nearly 10 per cent. As recently as January, 1929, it was 6.17 per cent, reaching its high for 1930 in May at 6.72 per cent. From that level it dropped abruptly and on the first of this month was at the remarkably low ratio of 3.56 per cent. Including the decrease in brokers' loans reported Thursday, the reduction since last May has been nearly 60 per cent. There has probably not been a time in the past 25 years when brokers were borrowing on such a small relative scale as at present.

Drop From April
Compared with last April, when the market was in the only pronounced bull stage of the year, the average price of all listed common stocks on Jan. 1 shows a drop to $35.37 from $63.08. Preferred stocks in the same period have declined to an average price of $35.77, from $73.97. Some of the most striking changes in common stock groups are the following: automobile stocks are down from $91.10 to $56.25; electrical stocks from $55.95 to $44.31; food stocks from $49.12 to $39.19; machinery and metal stocks from $52.87 to $27.72; amusement stocks from $45.53 to $20.40; mining stocks from $41.56 to $20.77; petroleum stocks from $42.10 to $23.63; retail merchandising stocks from $48.93 to $30.05; and iron and steel stocks from $103.70 to $69.93.

Stocks representing the railroad industry in the same period declined from $107.68 average to $63.10. Those reflecting the public utilities dropped from $55.29 to $43.51. While the percentage of the average decline between April and Jan. 1 was about 44 per cent, in some groups, such as that identified with the mining industry, it was over 50 per cent. On the other hand, the shrinkage in the average price of food stocks was about 30 per cent.

Police Officers Become Good Shots With Pistols

getting along in years but who pulls a mean trigger. The chief fired ten shots and when his target was drawn in it showed hits that would do justice to many a younger officer who is supposed to have a steadier arm.

Sergeant Herbert Kapp is one of the men shooting the long distance, 50 feet and his target also showed a high score with half the ten shots fired within the 8-9-10 circle, a real accomplishment when the center of the target looks about twice the size of a dot.

One of the sergeant-detectives, an Irishman whose name won't be mentioned had his ten shots and when the paper was pulled in he showed so well the instructor accused someone of punching the holes for him. This charge was later dropped and Mac got credit for his marksmanship.

Another officer, a motorcycle man, showed a target that revealed all the hits on the upper half and thereon lies another story. This officer, it seems was continually firing high and when it was discovered he was aiming at the center of the black instead of having the bull's eye resting on top the front sight he was charged with trying too hard to get 10s and instead was drawing only 4s, 5s and even 3s. That charge has not been proved, however.

Extra Practices
There are more charges hurled at the boys when their shooting improves than a prosecutor can hurl at a murder trial. For instance, Officer Court landed five shots within the select circle and then it was whispered around he had his own gun and tried his skill in the back of a car. Officer Van Rooy hit the black five times, too, but so far he hasn't been charged with sneaking in a few extra lessons on the boys.

The reporter missed one treat, however. We couldn't stay around long enough to see "Big Joe" Rankin shoot, but we've heard he's pretty good.

And that night when the reporter wandered home he met two police officers standing on a College-avenue corner and gazing at a College-avenue corner. Their target record for the day—and believe it or not they were telling each other good stories.

NEENAH NOSES OUT NEW LONDON QUINT, 17 TO 15

Field Goal by Johnson in Last Minute of Game
Breaks Tie Score

Neenah—With but one minute and a half left and the score tied 15 and 15, Gerald Johnson, swished a long shot through the basket, giving Neenah a 17 to 15 victory Friday night over New London at the new gymnasium. The score at the beginning of the last quarter was 14 and 10 in Neenah's favor, the locals scoring three points to five made by New London. With but two minutes left, Fred Raby found the hoop for a ring, after Westphal and Dierbeck had tallied three points on free throws. Immediately after Raby's basket, Johnson came through with the deciding basket which ended the game. The game started with Schmidt, Neenah's forward, scoring a basket. A few minutes later he scored twice on free throws when he was fouled by Dierbeck. Block fouled, which earned the first point for New London on a freethrow by Raby. Westphal fouled and gave Bell two free throws which he made. Raby ended the quarter with a field goal, making the score 6 and 3 in Neenah's favor.

Johnson opened the second quarter with a field goal, followed by a foul by Block. Westphal missing the chance to score. Westphal fouled and Barnes gained a point on a free throw. Barnes fouled and Floyd Raby missed. Block fouled his third foul and Raby tallied a point and the half ended with Schmidt taking a free throw on a foul by Ladwig. After which Pfeiffer dropped in a field goal.

Barnes fouled, giving Raby a chance to make a point on a free throw. Barnes was taken out and replaced by Haire. Play resumed and Westphal tallied a marker on a short throw from the freethrow line. Ladwig fouled giving Schmidt another point on a free throw. Schmidt fouled, but Pfeiffer missed. The third quarter ended with a field goal made by Westphal, placing the score at 14 and 10. Ladwig was taken out on four fouls. Floyd Raby went in.

With but four points difference, New London played fast ball with a spurt which made the last quarter fast and furious. Westphal fouled, giving Bell a chance for a point; Ladwig fouled but Schmidt missed; Block got his fourth foul and was taken out and replaced by Gaertner, who fouled on the second play and Westphal made two free throws; Haire fouled and Dierbeck took advantage for one point; Barnes came back in the game, relieving Haire when there was but four minutes left to play. Raby then scored, tying the score at 15 all. Then Johnson scored the final field goal for Neenah.

New London had the edge on the locals throughout the entire game but missed many scoring chances. Neenah's defense was strong. The Neenah boys showed improvement since the W. DePere game. The visitors showed up well defensively, keeping the ball near their basket much of the time.

Spectators numbered more than 100. It was estimated. New London rotators were accompanied by the high school 40 piece band which alternated with Neenah high school band during the evening.

STURGEON BAY FIVE DEFEATS MENASHA, 36-20

Visitors Assume Early Lead and Hold Command
Throughout Game

Menasha—Scoring easily in every period, Sturgeon Bay high school basketball team whipped Menasha high school cagers 36 to 20 at Butte des Morts gymnasium Friday evening. The game was a scoring spree throughout with Asmus of Menasha and Halverson of Sturgeon Bay tied for high honors.

With Co-Captain Becker playing center at the tip-off and dropping back into the regular position at guard when play was in progress, the Menasha offense and defense showed a marked improvement over the game against the Oconto team last week.

The cherry pickers opened the scoring in the first quarter when Rose arched a field goal through the netting and Hembel repeated a few moments later. "Zip" Asmus, fast moving Menasha forward, retaliated with a field goal for the locals, and Massey's free throw brought the count to 4 and 3. Field goals by Halverson and a pair of successful free throws by Rose gave the invaders a five point advantage as the first period ended.

Asmus did all of Menasha's scoring in the second quarter. Playing all over the court, Asmus tossed two field goals through the hoop and accounted for a fifth point with a free toss. At least a half dozen of his shots rolled on the rim of the basket and fell to one side. A field goal by Halverson, a pair of free throws by Hembel and another by Schmelze accounted for the five Sturgeon Bay markers and the half ended with Menasha on the short end of a 13 to 8 count.

Langer of Menasha opened the scoring in the second half with a free throw but Halverson retaliated with a pair of them. Trilling chalked up another mark for the Calderman with a free throw, but Schmelze and Koehn dropped three field goals through the hoop. Trilling scored again on a free toss and Koehn added two points to the Sturgeon Bay total with a long shot to the basket. Field goals by Becker and Langer started a brief Menasha rally but after a field goal by Hembel, the score was 25 to 16, as the fourth quarter opened.

Field goals by Langer and Asmus accounted for the only Menasha markers in the final period, while the cherry pickers added 11 points to their total. Rose, Koehn, Halverson, and Wanke tossed five field goals for the invaders while a free toss by Koehn added the extra point. The Sturgeon Bay team led, 36 to 20, at the end of the game.

Conference Victory, 12
to 5

Menasha—St. Mary high school basketball team scored its first conference victory at Oshkosh Friday evening, defeating St. Mary school of that city 12 to 5. The Oshkosh quintet was unable to penetrate the St. Mary defense and failed to overcome a Menasha lead established in the first half. Play was about evenly divided in the first period, which ended with the count knotted at 1 and 1. In the second quarter a pair of field goals gave Menasha a four point lead while holding the Oshkosh cagers scoreless.

A fast moving pass attack, with Kleifer and Dubester dropping field goals through the netting at close range, gave the invaders the advantage early in the first period. The half ended with the count at 15 to 7 in favor of the newsmen. Play during the third and fourth periods was on even terms, but the Menasha team was unable to overcome the eight point lead established by the visitors in the first half.

BUELOW ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT OF SPORTSMAN CLUB

Annual Meeting of Twin City
Organization Held Friday
Evening

Neenah—John Buelow was elected president of the Twin City Sportsman club at the annual meeting Friday evening at Danish Brotherhood hall. Other officers are Emmett Christofferson, first vice president; Walter Lovejoy, second vice president; William Schmidt, treasurer; and Lawrence Eisenach, elected secretary. Committees will be appointed later by the president.

The club approved several resolutions covering hunting and fishing which will be forwarded to the conservation commission and state legislators. One resolution asked that spearing of sturgeon through the ice be permitted each year during January and February. The club opposes catching sturgeon by set lines, as this commercializes this kind of fishing it was held. Another resolution asked that the rabbit and squirrel hunting season be established from Oct. 15 to Dec. 15 instead of from Jan. 1, as is the case now. Still another resolution asked to open the deer hunting season from Dec. 1 to

Jan. 15, and to allow the shooting of doves as well as ducks.

Proposal to enlarge the game reserve west of the city was abandoned, although it will be considered later. The club received a communication from the conservation commission explaining why the commission could fill Neenah's requisition for pike fry during 1930. The demand was so great that there were not enough to go around, it was pointed out. The communication suggested the club enter its request for 1931 shipments as soon as possible. It was recommended the club secure its pheasants for planting in the neighboring woods from the state this year. A letter of condolence will be forwarded Mrs. Edward Lawson, widow of the former club president, who died since the last meeting.

Following the business meeting a schafkopf tournament was conducted. Prizes were won by William Schmidt, Walter Helnes and Arthur Niles. Lunch was served by wives of members.

Reilly Fights Order Restoring Old Level of Lake Winnebago

SEEKS DELAY UNTIL AFTER FLOOD SURVEY

Cities at Lower End of Lake Fear Damage to Riparian Rights

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Rep. Michael K. Reilly of Fond du Lac is fighting the order issued by the war department restoring the level of Lake Winnebago to 213 inches above the crest of the Menasha dam.

He is specifically seeking to have enforcement of the order delayed at least until after the flood control survey of the Fox river, authorized in the Lampert bill passed by the senate Jan. 10, is completed.

Cities on lower Lake Winnebago are opposed to the higher water because of the fear flood and injuries to riparian rights while those on the lower Fox sought and obtained the new order because they feel that low water is detrimental to sanitation and navigation.

Representative Reilly is withholding definite action pending receipt of the results of the meeting of the Association for Relief of High Water at Oshkosh Saturday.

Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton is taking no part in the controversy, since there is conflicting opinion in his district, but he placed before the war department the petitions of Fox river cities, including Kaukauna, Appleton, De Pere, Menasha, Kimberly and Little Chute, asking for high water. Senator John J. Blaine also took the matter up with the department.

BOILER CO. ENTERS PROTEST ON RATES

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—The Wickes Boiler Company of Saginaw, Mich., has just filed two complaints with the Interstate Commerce Commission, both concerned with freight rates charged on boilers shipped to Wisconsin points, including Kaukauna, Appleton, and Neenah.

The first complaint is concerned with a case already decided adversely by the commission. The Michigan company asks the removing of this case from the commission's jurisdiction.

The second complaint concerns a report proposed by an Examiner in a case concerning shipments of boilers from Saginaw to Hartford, Wis., and to Appleton and Neenah.

The Michigan company wants a rate of 31 cents to Hartford and plus 27 cents to Oshkosh, totaling 58 cents, and 27.5 cents to Manitowish and 45 cents to Kaukauna, totaling 82.5 cents.

Two lines run from Manitowish, one to Green Bay junction through Francis Creek and the other to Kaukauna through Reedsville. The Wickes Boiler Company argues that a 28 cent rate should have been applied over either route.

DEAD AUTOMOBILES ARE CREMATED AT RIVER ROUGE PLANT

Hundreds of Different Makes Since 1900 Now Only a Memory

Detroit—(AP)—At the plant of the Ford Motor company in River Rouge, Detroit suburb, is what might be called a crematorium for "dead" automobiles. Thousands of cars of every known make—and some long forgotten—have been brought there to be stripped of everything salvageable and then dumped into the flaming maw of the blast furnace, the metal reclaimed going back into the production of newer types of automobiles.

Most of the cars, of course, are early models of Ford's own make, but not infrequently there comes an "orphan," dragged out of a barn where it long has stood awaiting final disposal. Perhaps it is an Appleton 1910 or an Ambassador of 1922; it may be a Dixie Flyer of 1917, or a Star of 1920; or it may be a "Mighty Michigan" of 1913. Always its appearance starts a discussion of the long list of motorcars that live only in dim memories.

The list that goes back to the very beginning of the horseless carriage, runs into the hundreds of different makes of motorcars. In separate piles, the cars are stacked in rows in the days when an industry was in the making. The fact that there are today fewer than a dozen companies that were in production 25 years ago tells how relentless has been the process of the survival of the fittest. Names that conjure up varying emotions are found in the list. For example, there are the Ben Hur of 1917, the Crow-Elliott of 1915, the Dorr of 1916, the El M. F. of 1909, the Lorraine of 1920, the R. C. H. of 1912, the Stoddard-Dayton of 1904 and hundreds of others.

Many Lose in Race
While today a "single" manufacturer produces several models under one name or possibly produces differently named cars in separate plants, the makers of most of the earlier manufacturers were producers of one model. Thus, most of the more than six hundred names that have gone to the automobile Valhalla took with them the hopes of many an aspiring automotive genius.

It was the lot of the early builders of automobiles—those who fashioned them in small workshops, to be scolded at as "crazy enough to be here," that the automobile some day would furnish the chief means of transportation.

The scoffers quite plainly were in the majority in the early days. Yet the beginning of the present century saw more manufacturers in production than there are today. Despite the lack of windshield, glass starters and even the most elementary conveniences there were at least four times as many kinds of cars on the market prior to 1905 as there are today.

Despite this variety of makes prior to 1905, the aggregate number of cars produced between 1900 and 1905 was less than half the number now produced in an average month. The year 1905, which saw the birth of the Ford Motor company, also saw the introduction of 51 new makes of cars to be added to the American market. The total production for the industry that year was 11,335 cars with a value of $13,000,000. In 1929, record year of the industry, the total output of passenger cars was 4,794,898 units, with a wholesale value of $2,951,141,492.

While the year 1930, one of the most hazardous in the history of the automobile industry, saw no manufacturing mortality, it added industry's casualties. Taking their places alongside the other "orphans of the highways" are the Eskrine, Blackhawk, Marquette, Locomobile, Roosevelt, Stearns, Viking and Whippel.

DAISY TELLS OF GIFTS GIVEN BY CLARA TO 'BOYS'

$4,000 Watch for Physician, $2,000 Ring for Actor Among Presents

Los Angeles—(AP)—The tempestuous trial of Daisy De Poe, former secretary of Clara Bow, on grand theft charges was opened a two day New York trial in "City Streets," temporarily at least, in the ranks of the unemployed.

The trial, packed full of the names and secrets of film people, closed its first week before a packed house yesterday as Miss DePoe began "telling on Clara." The blonde secretary is charged with illegally taking $16,000 from the red-headed actress.

In 40 minutes on the stand as the first defense witness, Miss DePoe drew a hasty sketch of her former employer buying expensive presents for men, ordering large consignments of liquor, playing poker six nights a week and having her hair bleached and hennaed.

Studio officials, who announced Miss Bow had been replaced by Sylvia Sydney, a recent recruit from the New York stage, in "City Streets," to have been her next starring vehicle, said the substitution was made at the orders of Clara's physician. They said the change was not made because Miss Bow had violated their edict, which Miss DePoe said had been in the form of a threat to drop Clara from pictures if she got "one more slam in the papers."

Daisy lapsed into thought before replying, "there were so many it is hard to remember them all." Then she recalled that Clara sent her to a store to purchase a $10,000 engagement ring.

This testimony was elicited as an explanation of why Miss DePoe had drawn checks, some of them to cash, on the "special Clara Bow account," to which she had access. She explained some of the stores declined to take checks, and she drew out the money for the purchases.

About the liquor, Miss DePoe testified "much, very much liquor" was delivered to Clara's home, where she was directed to pay for it at the door. The largest consignment she could remember cost $2,000 for a "poker parties." Miss DePoe said, explained many of the hundreds of checks she drew. She said Clara always had her pay the debts, which ranged from $5 to $200.

These items, Miss DePoe explained, sometimes were paid out of her own account, sometimes by check on the special account and sometimes "virtually impossible," she averred. "I used to try to keep the accounts straight," she said, "but once Clara found me sorting out cancelled checks and said, 'I've told you not to do that. I've got other things for you to do.'"

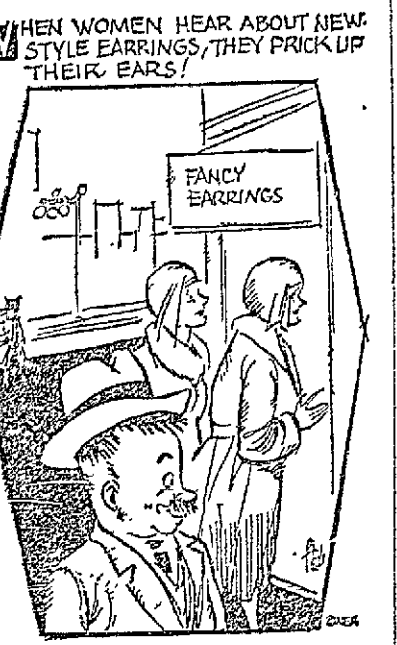

Miss DePoe said she came to Hollywood seven years ago from St. Louis. She became a hair dresser and a consumer. She was earning $45 a week and tips from stars. She said when Miss Bow sought to employ her she protested she had no secretarial experience. When she went to the Bow home to live she said she took a bedroom vacated by William Bow, cousin of the actress, and Jimmy Dundee, whom she did not identify.

She was to be Miss Bow's companion and secretary, buy all her clothes, pick up all the bills, supervise the household, pick up her dresses, "bleach and henna her hair and keep the lines out of her face so she would look good before the camera," and inform the men who called on Clara when they were no longer to be received.

While talking about the checks, Miss DePoe made the statement that she issued checks to New York, Texas and at Calneva, Nev., sometimes out of her own checkbook and sometimes from that of the special account. The reference to Calneva recalled that in the confession which the prosecution read into the records, Miss DePoe said it was after the actress' return from Calneva and a gambling resort owner accused her of stopping payments on $20,000 in checks given to cover her losses that the studio told her to keep her name out of print.

Miss Bow herself did not attend the session. In her place at the counsel table sat Red Bell, her latest "boy friend" and personal representative. He said Clara was ill.

The following joint resolutions were introduced: Memorializing Congress to enact a federal old age pension law—Philip E. Nelson, Manila.

Relative to purchase by state from counties non-urban lands acquired by them under tax deed and their management and making appropriations—Walter S. Goodland, Racine.

Memorializing Congress to set aside part of the war debt payments to this country for the purpose of establishing scholarships for American students to study in European universities without discrimination as between former allied and former enemy countries; to enact legislation to again give aid to the state for maternity and infancy welfare similar to that extended in the Sheppard-Towner act; endorsing plan for public operation and development of lands belonging relative to improvements and resolutions relative to changing compensation of governor and lieutenant-governor through amending present statutes—Duncan.

That the department of agriculture and markets report to the legislature not later than March 15 facts on the prices of bread and meat in relation to cost of manufacture and distribution—Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee.

About four weeks ago the state department of agriculture and markets announced it would make an investigation of bread and meat prices as asked in the Polakowski resolution. H. M. Knipfel, agriculture commissioner, yesterday said the investigation of meat prices had been under way for sometime and consideration had been given the injury into the price of bread.

TAKE TESTIMONY IN TWO WORKER'S CASES

Testimony in two cases arising under the Workmen's Compensation act was taken before W. T. McCormick, an examiner for the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, in hearings at the city hall Friday afternoon. The hearings closed a two-day calendar conducted before Examiner McCormick.

He claimed he was struck by the handle of a truck on which he was working. Ray Stocker, Kaukauna, sought compensation from the Potts Wood company for alleged injury to his fingers while he was employed by the Potts Wood company of Appleton at the Kaukauna plant. He was cleaning a floor when he slipped and his fingers were caught in a ventilator fan.

Flowers Improve Looks Of Vegetable Garden

An attractive design and the free use of flowers about the vegetable garden will make it an attraction the season long. The use of flowers in the vegetable garden is an old continental and English idea and it is still often seen in the gardens maintained by Germans of an older generation.

Rows of annuals are alternated with rows of vegetables. The beds are raised and kept to sharply maintained straight lines with paths between, and around each vegetable bed there is a narrow border of some favorite annual. Some of the vegetables with ornamental foliage are effectively used in this manner. Among them are parsley, carrots, swiss chard and that useful herb, sage, the gray green foliage, and blue blooms of which are as attractive as many of the subjects grown exclusively in the vegetable garden.

Chives give a neat, gray line and in their season give a wealth of heads of lavender bloom. Parsley, sweet alyssum, lobelia, Virginia stocks, dwarf petunias, dwarf marigolds and other low growing plants are often used as edgings for vegetable patches.

In the garden laid out in straight rows an occasional row of annuals or beds furnish for the table upon which the vegetables are to be used in the menu gives fine color and effect. For this purpose nasturtiums, asters, calendula, scabiosa, ten weeks stocks and other annuals of compact and upright growth are excellent. Annual plants of wide spreading, sprawling growth are not appropriate as vegetable companions.

A seed bed in some convenient corner with annuals growing in rows ready for transplanting may be established, and from this supply annuals can be transplanted into the vegetable garden as fast as some of the early vegetables have matured and have been gathered and used. The spinach, radish and lettuce rows or beds furnish an excellent place to move in annuals after the vegetables have done their duty. It is also an excellent idea to plant gladioli bulbs for a cutting supply in space vacated by early vegetables as they can be planted up to July.

THE REAL SECRET of HAPPINESS

The touch of divinity in man takes no higher form than his desire to share with others. And in the fulfillment of that desire does man attain to one of life's sweetest joys. It is not enough to work, save, provide for oneself and family. One must GIVE unselfishly in order to learn the real secret of happiness.

Give some of your time and money to the Church of God. Make the most of Sunday. Go to Church, for it is said: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

A Chronicle of POOR RICHARD

THE early history of our country has no more vivid commentary on its mode of life—its thought and ideals—than lie in the tattered brown pamphlets known as Poor Richard's Almanack. Each year they came into these frugal homes to form practically the only link between them and the outside world. They were read until, thumbed and ragged, they could scarcely hold together. Here were wise sayings, extracts from sermons, political squibs and most important to the farmer who studied them—weather predictions.

It is difficult in these days of daily papers, copious magazines and radios to realize the importance these Almanacks had two hundred years ago. The make-up of the Almanack consisted of a title page ornamented with some crude wood cut, followed by an "Address to the Courteous Reader". Then came the calendar, each one occupying a page including weather predictions such as "High Wind", "Ray and Chilly", "Northwest Wind" and "Snow Blast."

Almanack Published For Twenty-Five Years

Such was the Almanack published by Benjamin Franklin in 1732 and for twenty-five years thereafter. It was modeled on other Almanacks of the period but surpassed them in wit and wisdom.

Franklin was clever enough to engage in controversy with his fellow philomaths, arousing unusual interest in the lively discussions that followed his satirical accusations. He also advertised his publication more extensively than had been the custom with his rival publishers—a practice that resulted in unprecedented sales.

A third reason for the success of the Almanack was the richness of proverb and wise sayings that Franklin used to fill in his paper.

Extracts Reprinted In Several Languages

The wisdom of Franklin was approved, not only here but abroad, where extracts from his writings were reprinted in several languages—the ten thousand copies printed annually were scarcely enough to fill the demands of the readers. This is not peculiar when we realize that many of the well worth sayings that we moderns repeat had their origin in the brown and well-worn pages of Poor Richard's Almanack. Indeed it was their inspiration that inspired Thrift Week—founded on the philosophy that made Franklin's writings so powerful a force for wise living, embodying as they did, counsels of thrift and cautious and consistent investment.

Thus the maxims that head our own Thrift Week—"Work and Earn", "Make a Budget", "Record Expenditures", "Have a Bank Account", "Own Life Insurance", "Own Your Own Home", "Make a Will", "Invest in Safe Securities", "Pay Bills Promptly", "Share With Others", have something of the flavor of these old time sayings. They embody that early wisdom, adapted to modern life; how closely, may be noted from the following sayings of Poor Richard—"God helps them that help themselves".

"The sleeping fox catches no poultry".
"Industry makes all things easy".
"Drive thy business let it not drive thee".
"If we are industrious we shall never starve".
"At the working man's house hunger looks in but dares not enter".

"Diligence is the mother of good luck".
"Employ thy time well if thou meanst to gain leisure".
"Industry gives Comfort and Plenty and Respect".
"If you would be wealthy, think of saving as well as getting".
"Great Estates may Venture more, But little Boats should keep near Shore".
"Be industrious and free, be frugal and free".

These are but a few of the many counsels Poor Richard gives for a life that is founded on principles of thrift. It is interesting to know that the life of the man who formulated these maxims was rich and colorful—touching many interests at many points.

Benjamin Fifteenth Of Seventeen Children

Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston, January 17, 1706. His parents were poor. Franklin was one of seventeen children, he being the fifteenth. At the age of eight he was sent to school where he displayed great aptitude for learning. At twelve he was apprentice to his brother James, who had set up a printing shop in the place. He left his brother and went to Philadelphia where he procured a position in a printer's shop. His spare time was spent in reading so that he soon had a rich background of various information.

Setting up his own printing establishment he first published Poor Richard's Almanack in 1732, and also became the editor of a newspaper, "The Gazette". Franklin was instrumental in establishing the first public library in Philadelphia. He also founded in 1753 the first company for insurance against fire. Among the public offices to which he was appointed were those of clerk of the general assembly of Pennsylvania in 1736; postmaster of Philadelphia in 1737; representative of Philadelphia in the assembly in 1726. In 1727 he was sent to England to settle some matters for the assembly. In 1753 he discovered the identity of electricity with lightning.

Franklin's renown spread over the whole civilized world and honors were given him by various learned societies of Europe. In 1723 he returned to America, but soon went to England to adjust difficulties which had arisen between her and the colonies. On his return to Philadelphia he was elected a delegate to the Congress assembled there and he exerted himself to the utmost to obtain a declaration of independence of the thirteen American states.

When the declaration was pronounced he was appointed United States minister to France. Returning to America in 1785 he was successively chosen member and president of the supreme executive council for the city of Philadelphia and in 1787 delegate for Pennsylvania to the convention for the revision and emendation of the articles of the Union.

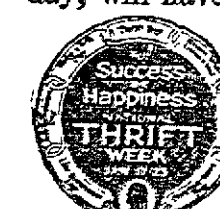

He retired from public life in 1788, and two years later on June 17, 1790, he passed away at the advanced age of 84.

HIS MAJESTY THE LAW

There isn't much justice in New York for a poor weak woman. Belle Livingstone, thirty years ago the pride of the Follies, and whose stubborn and insistent ambition is to run a high grade drink emporium, "just like Paris," has been arrested three times in as many months, some of her places padlocked, but Miss Livingstone cares little for that as there are always lots of empty places for rent and she just sends out notice of her new address to her mailing list and "the club members" have no difficulty in finding the new rendezvous. Then there is the profitable advantage of a housewarming every time a new place is opened.

Raids are annoying of course but every business has its cares. Things might be worse. So many businesses now are under the shadow of depression but nothing like that is found in Miss Livingstone's chosen vocation. It takes all of one flunky's time opening and closing the door to admit the "right people" for the proprietor is particular on that score. Money is not her prize in life, essential as is some of it to operation, but rather the satisfaction of running a nice place for nice people who in turn are nice and therefore not particular about prices. Miss Livingstone finds satisfaction in the customer's sigh of relief as he tastes a Dry Martini, lovingly gargles it a while, and praises it for the genuine contents, something not always found in these miserable days.

With 32,000 speakies in New York City, according to the report of former Police Commissioner Whalen, it seems to an outsider from this distance, that Miss Livingstone's place should not be raided quite so often, say about once in five years which is the average for other places in our modern Babylon, but such is the efficacy of our law and the resolute way in which we enforce it that while raids will occur, Miss Livingstone has not yet been brought to trial for any law violation, and from her smiling and good-natured insistence upon opening one place after another, it is evident that she does not care a snap of her well-manicured fingers for the law.

Her place, she would have you know, is not a speakeasy but a "salon"; people do not go there to drink but to talk and listen and learn; Miss Livingstone is not the proprietor, merely a hostess, sort of an instructor. Who is the proprietor? She smiles winningly, —how should she know? Ask her something easy. From whence came that lot of assorted liquors found on the premises? Planted by a dry agent, of course. Jury verdict: not guilty.

It is so impersonal to take an example from a thousand miles away, but would it be necessary to go quite so far for similar examples and plenty of them? Such law enforcement will obtain results just about like a man may be hurt by hitting him on the arm with a canary feather.

STUDY OF EMPLOYMENT

A comprehensive study to ascertain what can be done in this community in the way of stabilizing employment in normal times as well as during periods of business recession is confidently expected to grow out of the movement launched here Thursday night to appoint a permanent committee on unemployment. This committee and its functions will be patterned in a general way after the national committee named by President Hoover and the state committee appointed by Ex-Governor Kohler.

These unemployment committees are less concerned with the immediate need for finding work for unemployed than they are in a long time study of the causes of unemployment and application of remedies where this is possible. While consideration and effort will be devoted at once to finding work for heads of families this will be more or less incidental to the larger problem outlined for the committees.

Appointment of these committees—national, state and local—is an indication of the widespread study that is being given the whole problem of unemployment. Statistics definitely prove that even in normal times a large percentage of men are out of work for various reasons, some of them quite easily susceptible to adjustment and change. Investigation in Appleton no doubt will prove that this also is true of this city and it will be the purpose of this committee to discover the facts and give thought to remedial measures.

A great opportunity for constructive public service is afforded this committee, soon to be appointed by Mayor Goodland with his advisors. If it approaches its task sincerely and with enthusiasm, it can and will contribute largely to the well-being of this community.

WANTED: ONE HUNDRED MILLION BUSHELS OF WHEAT

A plan, a constructive plan, is afoot in the form of an international agreement between Great Britain and this country for the purpose of putting a definite end to civil war in China, helping it out of its many difficulties, smoothing over its hatreds and animosities, and it is a constructive plan because it will help other nations and particularly those mentioned, to recover their own business equilibrium. There are about four hundred million mouths in China and most of them are hungry. There are as many bodies and most of them are undernourished. If China quit spending its energy and its treasure upon internecine strife it is estimated that it would need and could easily handle 100,000,000 bushels of the surplus wheat of Canada and this country.

There is no sense in trying to hold a nation that is struggling through the worst possible miseries of disorder and destruction to a nice sense of national obligations and duties, simply because it cannot comply with them. We learned that through our experience with Mexico. For years our government held the Mexican government accountable with a curb rein, an action which only irritated Mexico at a time when it was beyond its power to comply with our demands. When Dwight Morrow was sent to Mexico to represent this government there was a complaint from some quarters because he had been a partner of J. P. Morgan and was immediately dubbed "Morgan's man." But he at once adopted the only sensible policy which was to help Mexico to her feet and to overlook for the time being her inability to do those things ordinarily required of any stable government.

His tact, his diplomacy and his helpful kindness made him the most popular of foreign diplomats in that land. He aided in building normal conditions and through such conditions he was successful in creating a steady, and what is even more important, a dependable exchange of commodities and produce between the two countries.

What Mr. Morrow did in Mexico should be done in China. Representatives of these great powers who can convince the Chinese that they do not want a slice of their country but are willing to be helpful in material ways in setting up a strong and worthy government can probably do more to effect that result than an army. The creation of a market for millions of bushels of our surplus wheat is only one of the many advantages that accrue to all nations when other nations are organized and operated along peaceful and worthy lines.

CHANGE

Against the restless tide of change
Not long can much we build remain,
And soon or late we rearrange
Our lives to meet some powerful strain.

Unseen, unfelt the power goes on
Beneath the surface which we see,
Then suddenly from us is gone
What permanent we thought to be.

Out of the old ways emerge the new,
Even against the will of man;
What yesterday we rose to do
No longer serves the modern plan.

Custom and habit break before
Life's irresistible command,
Who has been dead your or more
Our speech would scarcely understand.

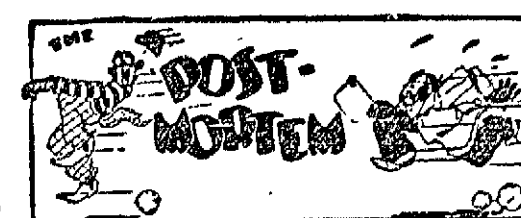

Though buildings fall and fortunes fade
As change another victory gains,
As 'twas since first the world was made,
The value of a man remains.

Still honored here and still will be
Through every change that time shall bring
That man who lives courageously,
And to his noblest dares to cling.

Today's Anniversary

LLOYD GEORGE'S BIRTH

On Jan. 17, 1863, David Lloyd George, British statesman and prime minister, was born of Welsh parentage at Manchester.

He was educated at a church school and later studied law with a firm. As winner of a great lawsuit involving the right of burial in parochial grounds, Lloyd George achieved wide deputation and was elected to Parliament in 1890.

During the Boer War he opposed the policy of the Conservative government, for which he became unpopular. His independence, ability and brilliant debating, however, steadily gained him recognition. Made chancellor of the exchequer in 1908, he took a leading part in important legislation.

After the outbreak of the World War, he was made prime minister and granted special dictatorial powers. In this post he served with great ability and skill. The war over, his ministry was given, in 1918, overwhelming endorsement in the Parliamentary elections.

In 1921 he brought about the conference with the Irish leaders which later resulted in the establishment of the Irish Free State. He resigned the premiership in 1922.

WHY ARE CUSPIDORS IN BOWLING ALLEYS?

A bowler of some note writes:
Most big bowlers seem to have continuous trouble with their throats. Every bowling season I catch a terrible "grapple," but of course I cannot swear it is due to the many hours daily passed in bowling alleys. As a rule the alleys are equipped with large air fans to blow the dust out, and besides porters with large brooms are continuously whirling it up. Then too, bowlers and spectators by the hundreds are coughing and spitting up almost everywhere except in the cuspidors. Once in a while you see some one actually look for and aim at a cuspidor, but he generally misses. The cuspidors are so low and narrow, as targets. This inspires me to ask why cuspidors are provided in bowling alleys. They must distract attention from the game in some instances . . .

I give it up. It is as difficult as finding an answer for another question which I'll ask myself. Why do so many otherwise good pipes get equipped with those annoying little tin strainers or do-funnies? It is most exasperating when your pipe gets clogged up and you discover you've got to dig the metal gadget out and dispose of it before you can enjoy peace and comfort once more.

Perhaps the managers of bowling alleys feel that patrons will not feel at home without the cuspidors. Then again, perhaps cuspidors are indispensable in bowling alleys because cuspidors have always been a part of the interior decoration of such places. In these days of alleged sanitary equipment cuspidors in bowling alleys should come under the local sanitary regulations, and only such equipment as dentists use should be tolerated in any public place.

More or less spitting is unavoidable in the office of the dentist or in the office of the nose and throat physician. Not by any means that courtesy can we concede that spitting is unavoidable in a railway car, in a theatre or in a dining room. But try and dodge the cuspidors as you stagger through the aisle!

A youngster having his initial experience with smoking needs a cuspidor to put it mildly. A creature who eats tobacco feels an occasional craving for a place to dispose of the juice. But does a lady or a gentleman need a cuspidor at any time? If not, then why do these receptacles occupy all the strategic positions in our luxurious crack trains?

The smoker who finds it necessary to spit should not be tolerated anywhere. He should be confined in a stable. He is obviously either affected with some disease, which may be communicable through his filthy habit, or else suffering from an overdose of tobacco. When any one talks too much tobacco nature attempts to eject the excess. So the spitting smoker with his array of cuspidors has no place among polite people.

Our public health ordinances are more or less a dead letter everywhere. Health officers are creatures of politics and American politicians and their friends are above the law.

Not that I believe spitting in public places is a matter of any particular concern to public health. But our public health ordinances prohibit this practice, and such ordinances should be enforced or rescinded.

To my mind spitting on the floor or on the pavement is merely offensive to the sense of neatness and not one-tenth as dangerous to public health as is open-mouthed smoking or coughing, against which there is neither sanitary ordinance nor a very clear taboo.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Even in England

About two years ago my brother-in-law in England was suffering badly from varicose veins and I sent him your articles on the chemical obliteration treatment. He has had this treatment with the most satisfactory results. I don't see why so many people keep on suffering with their legs when they could have relief so easily. (C. V. G.)

Answer—For two reasons. First, because a large share of varicose vein sufferers seldom consult a physician about their trouble. Second, because not a few physicians are still serenely unaware of the chemical obliteration treatment or even imagine it is "dangerous" or "no good." However, the better physicians everywhere now treat these patients successfully by this method, which does not detain the patient more than half an hour from his or her occupation. Many women have the treatment merely for cosmetic effect, and since a lady must show a leg more or less these days, she is justified in showing the best looking leg she can. In many cases, too, the chemical obliteration of the varicose or dilated or enlarged veins proves a long step toward the healing of the obstinate varicose ulcer.

Wow, Wow, Wow!
If cold air and damp night air and exposure made any difference, our kids would have been pushing up daisies long ago. They are 2 and 5 years old, and they have slept out on an unheated sleeping porch from birth, and you know how cold it gets in this latitude (St. Paul) and they've never been sick. The only thing we dread is the prospect of contact with paupered have to enter school. (B. L. B.)

Answer—Let's see, that will be three years hence. There is a lot of good health intelligence, as well as other kinds, in our community, son. I knew, because I planted it there. Maybe by the time the kids enter school we'll have the teachers' school nurses, medical inspectors and health authorities won't over to the recognition of CRI. School is the hardest place to set up the Golden Rule, but we're making progress in spots and eventually it is going to be absolutely impossible for any kid—or teacher—to come to school with anything that remotely resembles a "slight cold." ## The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

Soon Clowdy cried, "I feel in trim to take a dandy little swim. Let's all try splashing in the Falls. I'll bet it will be fun. Our bathing suits are in the truck and that's what I call real good luck." And toward the truck the little fellow started out to run.

"Hey! Wait!" the Travel Man cried out. "The thought you have is fine, no doubt, but you can't swim in such a place. That water beats down hard. I'm positive 'twould hurt you all. 'Tis best to stand and watch it fall. We want no accidents because our whole trip would be marred."

"He's right," said Scouty. "Not for me! Right here I'm safe as I can be. Come back here and remain with us. You might get lost again." "All right," snapped Clowdy, with a grin. "The swim is off and I give in. I thought it was a dandy hunch, but I'm wrong, now and then."

Soon Carry said, "Let's take a hike. We'll see some sights that we will like. Perhaps we still can have a swim. A river's right near by." "Why," the Travel

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER - Washington—Famed in the United States senate is the bachelor quartet composed of:

The youthful Millard Tydings of Maryland.

The erudite Bronson Cutting of New Mexico.

The movie-lover Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee.

The much-in-demand socially Dave Walsh of Massachusetts.

One of the quartet, McKellar of Tennessee, when the emergency relief bills were before the senate, as called President Hoover and charged that he had not accounted for expenditure of the huge Belgian relief fund to aid starving and hungry children.

To which Otis Glenn of Illinois, father of two children, replied: "This charge . . . comes from one who does not and can not really know the love for children which President Hoover has within his heart. I submit that no man who has reared no children of his own, no bachelor, can feel the same impulses of love and affection for childhood as does the present President of the United States, a proud father, an indulgent President, a lover of childhood."

Need a Quick Wit
A politician must be quick-witted at all times—whether during rough or a tumble debate in congress or elsewhere. Often much depends on this.

For example, I was chatting just the other day in a corridor of the capitol with a senator whose name is a household word, almost. One of nowhere boomed a voice:

"How do you do, Senator —?" in most familiar fashion. It was evident that Senator — had no idea who the man was who

Man replied. And to the stream the whole bunch hied. It was the old Zambesi. Clowdy heaved a little sigh.

Said he, "That sure looks cool to me. And look, what is that, that I see?" The other Tynmites gazed down stream, and spied a queer canoe. A native maiden sat within. Upon her face there spread a grin. "She's friendly," said the Travel Man, "and coming this way, too!"

The maiden paddled to the bank. The Travel Man said, "I will thank you, if you show these little ladies the bracelets that you wear." She smiled and held her arm out straight. Wee Scouty cried, "Gee, they are great I never saw so many and I'll bet they all are rare."

Honestly now . . . is that any way to act?

Going around needing a hair cut? Letting your car go without a change of oil? Allowing your home to run down at the heel when papering and paint would pep it up?

Are you sacrificing the pleasure and comfort of new clothes because you are afraid to spend the money?

The only way to restore things to order is to order NOW the things you need.

FINE BARGAINS IN STOCKS NOW, BABSON HOLDS

Careful Investors Will Lay Foundations for Fortunes This Year

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson, Park, Mass. — Those who consider that present quotations of stocks and bonds represent their real values will miss some golden opportunities. Quotations seldom represent values during either a boom or a depression. In boom times, quotations run far ahead of values; in depressions, they fall far below values. Ask yourself, "What would my house sell for today under forced sale in 30 minutes without notice?" Obviously, if you could sell it at all in such a short time you would get only a fraction of what it is worth. Yet, every sale of stocks or bonds today is a forced sale without notice. The newspapers might appropriately head their daily stock and bond lists "Today's Security Bargain Sale," instead of "New York Stock Exchange Quotations."

The people who will lay the foundation for their fortunes in 1931 will be those who look behind unfair quotations and see the real value underlying good securities. For example, if one of the good oil companies has one million shares of stock, and you own one thousand shares you own one-thousandth of every oil well, pipe line, filling station and tank wagon. Moreover, those things are just as good today as they were two years ago—in fact probably better. In other words, you own one one-thousandth of the property just the same whether the stock is selling at 43 or 14. When this era of extreme pessimism is over the true value of the stock and handsome profits will reward the man who now exercises both courage and foresight.

Good Values

When we find, as at present, more than one third of all stocks listed on the Exchange selling below their actual book values, the situation is full of promise. Indeed, some stocks are now quoted close to or below the amount of their net working capital per share. In certain cases cash items alone are worth more than the quoted price of the shares. In other words, some important companies are today for sale for the bare amount of liquid assets necessary to carry on the business. The immensely valuable land, buildings, machinery, goodwill, patents, trademarks, and other equipment are all thrown in free. It is indeed seldom that the American investor is offered the chance to buy going concerns with good future prospects on such terms. It is largely a matter of fortuitous quotations created by forced sales.

Bonds also have been unfairly marked down by forced sales. It seems both unreasonable and unfair that in the case of a bond issue of $25,000,000 for instance, when a $10,000 bond of bonds sells off 10 points, all holders of the entire $25,000,000 must mark their bonds down 10 points. This marking down by banks and other institutions of their bonds and other accounts to match current quotations is needlessly lessening their investment accounts, 90 per cent of these bond quotations will later rebound to even higher quotations than when originally bought. The situation offers bond investors a fine chance to buy gold dollars for 85 cents or 90 cents. It is just another case of unfair quotations in a period of stress.

Investment Basis

An average yield close to 6 per cent, now available on sound common stocks, excluding rights and stock dividends, is a pretty good indication that prices have reached sound buying levels. When in the bull market of 1929, stocks were returning to 26 1/2 to 3 per cent, today a 6 per cent return is common.

This applies to many companies where the dividend is in no danger, and which should make excellent profits when business again improves.

Men handling large estates are now quietly accumulating good stocks and bonds at prices which they know represent outstanding bargains. To be sure, the investor who chooses carefully, who picks and chooses carefully, but any investor who will take time to carefully study individual situations can, through the coming months, lay the basis for financial independence. The average of the so-called "blue chip" stocks has not reached quite as high a yield in this depression as it did in 1921 or in 1907, but the average yield of all industrial stocks is now fully as high as in those periods. However, in relation to the lower prevailing current yields on sound stocks are actually as good or better than in 1921 or 1907. This does not mean that prices may not go somewhat lower and yields somewhat higher, but it does mean that we are now in the midst of golden opportunities for the long-pull investor.

Don't Plunge

A major business and financial depression like the present cannot be expected to right itself overnight. Certain distorted situations must still be straightened out, certain maladjustments corrected and the mental attitude of the people gradually strengthened before a steady and sweeping improvement in business and prices can occur. Hence, while recognizing that the present year will be one of rare opportunities, the investor should not act hastily.

We are paying up now for the excesses of the past. It may be a tedious process, but it must be gone through. We Americans always go on a big spree together, but we sober up one by one. Thus the sobering up process takes time.

While it is going on, however, business, prices, and everything else

Banking System Strength Seen As Aid To Recovery

The great body of the nation's 25,000 banks, with nearly $60,000,000,000 of resources, are in a strong condition, notwithstanding some isolated weak spots. These banks are prepared to go the limit of business judgment and credit resources in assisting business back on its feet.

Many banks of the country have emerged from the depression in the most liquid state in their history. This fact is attested by the estimate that in the vaults of all banks in the nation there is now the huge total of $7,000,000,000 in cash and government securities.

Behind the banks stands the Federal Reserve System, whose gold resources are nearly $3,000,000,000. Only a fraction of the system's vast reservoir of credit reserves is in use at present, member banks having the smallest indebtedness to the Federal Reserve System since 1917.

The current situation is in happy contrast with the successive collapses of powerful institutions in 1873 and 1893, and the extended run on many great trust companies in 1907, accompanied by suspension of free cash payments by all banks. We have nothing now, nor should we have anything, which bears resemblance to those conditions.

$158 DUE KOHLER CO. IN RATE DECISION

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — The Kohler Company of Kohler, Wis., will receive $158.96 from a number of carriers for overcharges on shipments of bathtubs and plumbers' goods from Sheboygan to Texas and will also receive repatriation for excessive freight charges on these shipments, under a decision just handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The company protested against rates on shipments which it made to Abilene, Pampa, Dallas, Houston, and other Texas points.

The commission's decision found the rates charged to Abilene and Pampa to be reasonable, but those to Dallas and Houston unreasonable. Repatriation for shipments to the last two points is provided in the commission's decision, equal to the difference between the reasonable charge and the charge collected by the railroads.

The commission also found rates charged the Kohler Company on mixed shipments of bathtubs and enameled-iron plumbers' goods, and straight shipments of enameled-iron bathtubs to other points in Texas unreasonable and awarded repatriation.

GROTH'S BICYCLE SHOP MAKES KEYS OF EVERY DESIGN

Proprietor Learned Trade Under Father, Who Was Expert Locksmith.

In the window of Groth's Bicycle Shop at 305 W. College-ave, is a novel display of old and unusual keys. Thousands of these keys have been replaced by the Groth key department, outstanding in its field throughout the Appleton area.

Nearly every known make of lock has been fitted with a key from Groth's, and this firm can duplicate almost any key in any quantity desired by the purchaser.

The person who carries keys should have a duplicate for each one. Groth's are prepared to duplicate any keys of the Yale type in five minutes. If keys are lost, Groth's can help to duplicate them with the least loss of time and convenience.

In the Groth key blank stock, it is significant to note that over 500 different patterns are carried. This covers almost every range and type of key in use today.

Mr. Groth himself learned his highly skilled trade from his father who, in turn, had acquired his knowledge, as a locksmith in Germany. There are few lock repairs or few duplicate keys which Mr. Groth cannot make. Nearly every office and public building in Appleton has keys made by the Groth firm in addition to hundreds of private homes.

The Groth firm offers adequate protection to the person who finds that there are keys in the possession of others which will fit his doors. In this event, Mr. Groth recommends a change in the locking combination. This can be quickly and easily done at little cost, and is a sure and permanent protection. Keys which formerly fitted the door will no longer open it.

Clubs and other places where several keys are in existence often change every year, thus keeping an accurate check on those who enter. In addition to its complete key-making equipment the Groth shop offers the latest in skate grinding machinery. Skates can be expertly sharpened to a keen edge and can be done while the customer waits.

The price has been set low enough so that every boy and girl can enjoy the thrill of skating on skates which are truly sharp. The cost is but 25 cents.

The Groth machinery, under expert supervision, takes out any bumps and holds the skate runner which cannot be done as perfectly with an oil stone sharpener. The edge will last much longer than if the skate were sharpened by hand.

The Groth service is always available at 305 W. College-ave and by calling 772.

AIRCRAFT, PILOTS INCREASE IN STATE

Slight Decrease in Number of Mechanics Is Noted in Last Three Months

By RUBY A. BLACK

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — Increases in the number of its aircraft, pilots, and gliders, but a slight decrease in the number of its mechanics are shown in Wisconsin in the three-months from September 1930 to January 1931, aviation record.

Its total number of aircraft increased from 211 on September 30, 1930, to 239 on January 1, placing it 12th among all the states and territories of this country. The Badger state is now also 12th in the total number of gliders, having increased its number of this new flying mechanism from 17 to 19 in three months.

Wisconsin's pilots have increased in number from 275 to 285, with the largest increase, from 96 to 104, in transport pilots. Other pilots in Wisconsin are those holding limited commercial licenses, 49 now compared with 52 in September, one holder of an industrial license, both then and now; and 131 holding private licenses, compared with 126 in this class in September. During the three-month period Wisconsin lost 2 mechanics, with its total sinking from 101 to 99.

Of the Badger State's total aircraft on January 1, 1931, 176 are licensed, and 73 unlicensed.

For the country as a whole, the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce reports 15,230 pilots, 7,354 aircraft, and 5,393 mechanics holding active Department of Commerce licenses, compared with 10,215 pilots, 6,553 aircraft, and 7,624 mechanics a year ago.

Of these totals, 355 pilots and 5 mechanics are women. "The women pilots are divided into 35 holding transport licenses, 50 limited commercial, and 297 private."

New York led the country in number of licensed and unlicensed aircraft with 1,213. California was second and Illinois third. California, however, led in pilots and mechanics, while New York and Illinois followed.

is pushed down to fictitiously low levels, and quotations are no more a measure of value than last year's time table. Hence, while remembering that at any auction sale, it is always the last bidder that pays the highest price, don't be stampeded into unsound purchases. There is plenty of time to study out strong security situations. Study them out carefully and when thoroughly convinced make your bid first instead of waiting to bid against the crowd.

Business by the Baleson chart now registers 23 per cent below normal compared with 11 per cent "down normal" at this time a year ago.

INSURANCE FIRM ENTERING UPON TWENTIETH YEAR

Employers Mutual and Liability, and Affiliated Company Do Big Business

Entering its twentieth year, the Employers Mutual Liability Insurance Company and its affiliated company, the Employers Mutual Indemnity Corporation of Wausau hold the distinction of doing 40 per cent of all the compensation and casualty insurance business of Wisconsin.

From the company's Appleton headquarters, on the fourth floor of the Insurance building, comes the impressive information that the companies had paid to policy holders $5,233,786.31 up to January 1 of a year ago. When figures for 1930 are completed, the total will be greatly increased.

The appreciable lowering of insurance costs to members holding policies in the two companies is easily seen when a comparison of insurance rates shows that the charges made by the Employers is no more than those made by stock insurance companies.

Both the corporations are non-stock concerns, and both turn all dividends back to policy holders, meanwhile promptly and satisfactorily attending to every claim presented.

From Appleton, the Fox river valley and adjacent areas are served by this constantly growing firm. A complete staff of adjusters, engineers and salesmen are always ready to serve.

The Employers are pioneers in the fields of safety improvements for workmen, greater education of drivers and a general lessening of the everyday hazards of earning and enjoying a living. A large staff is constantly engaged in this work.

The firm maintains, in Wausau, a curative workshop in charge of experts, where persons crippled in industrial or automobile accidents may be restored partly or wholly to health and use of the hands, arms, and legs. Over 500 cases have been treated.

The Employers Mutual Indemnity corporation is the younger of the two affiliated firms. It was begun in 1923 in response to an insistent demand for a reliable mutual indemnity corporation which returned dividends to its policy holders. The Indemnity Corporation is conducted in the same offices and with the same personnel used for the Liability company, thus effecting a saving for policy holders.

Its growth has been rapid and policy holders are tremendously pleased with the same prompt and fair settlements which have characterized the name of Employers Mutual since 1911.

In charge of sales at the Appleton office are R. J. White and H. T. Nolan, who, as do the rest of the Employers Mutual staff, maintain residence in Appleton. The company can be reached through 3264.

Girls' Club Hears Talk About Peace

MRS. J. S. REEDY gave the program on International Peace at the meeting of Appleton Girls' club Friday night at the Woman's club. Mrs. Reed helped to organize the club and has shown active interest in it since its founding.

Letters were read from several corresponding members including Miss Mary Sands, Hartland, formerly of Appleton. Hostesses were the Misses Marie Ziegenhagen, Anna Helm, Sophia Schaefer and Mrs. H. Griffin.

Over the Teacups club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. H. Jennings, 1124 E. North-st. Members were present: Mrs. Nina Harty was the reader. Mrs. Joseph Kofford, Jr., discussed current events, and Mrs. F. W. Clippinger reviewed the magazine article. The club will be entertained at a luncheon next Friday at the home of Mrs. H. J. # Tell Child To Live Life Of Franklin

BY ANGELO PATRI FRANKLIN

Benjamin Franklin is a name to send proud thrills through the souls of American boys and girls. We ought to know all we can about him because his childhood was so different from that of most of the children of today. He started out to hold his own in the world when he was only a boy. Boys do that today too, but most of them have people at home to help them. Franklin had to depend upon himself.

If you were a boy of fourteen working long hours each day to earn your bread and to keep a roof over your head, to say nothing about clothing yourself, could you educate yourself at the same time? You could if you were a boy like Franklin. Or a girl with his intelligence and purpose and power.

Perhaps it was because he had to earn each penny—his money was counted in pennies for many a year, that he learned how to use them, how to make them work for him. Children nowadays can earn money but they know very little about using it because they don't have to use it to keep life in their bodies. Experience is a great help in this as in many other ways and perhaps this friendless lad had the advantage over our boys and girls in that respect. But couldn't we try to gather a little experience while we enjoy the care given us by fond parents?

It is better for one's soul to earn money than to have it given generously. Earning it makes for wisdom in spending it. Needing it makes one search for ways of increasing it power and its growth. If one studies Franklin's life this bit of truth will shine clearly through it.

We are likely, however, to remember Franklin as a saying boy rather than an investing boy. He saved money not just to KEEEP the money. He saved it so as to have it ready for USE. His purpose, his need, had taught him the wisdom of that. He saved to invest.

You first invest money in your self so as to make that self the best possible kind of one. You invest in education, in equipment, in health, in vacation, in property. The proper investment comes last of all because it belongs to adults, not children.

I always feel sad when I see young boys and girls spending money freely on silly things. (I think exaggerated clothes, night parties, speed rides, are silly things.) Grow-up people know that youngsters have no money and that when they spend it in silly ways they are spending money someone else has earned. That is very bad because it injures character growth.

Try being thrifty in true Franklin spirit. Barn and spend and invest in your youth that your old age may be fully of the spirit of joy and youthfulness. There is much truth in that grasshopper tale. (Copyright, 1931, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

MASCARA AND ITS PROPER USE FOR EYE BEAUTY

BY ALICIA HART

The last rite in eye makeup, and the most delicate and arduous, is the use of mascara.

Strictly speaking, most women achieve a certain glamor of the eyes by using mascara at night. It takes a master hand to use it in the daytime and not have it show like the floss lashes on window mannikins.

The color of mascara that you select depends, like the eye shadow and eyebrow pencil, on the color of your eyes and on your general tone, and on your temperament.

If you are a mild, sweet person, you realize it would be ludicrous for you to come out with each eyebrow beaded and standing out a darker hue by far than it would be naturally. Not that even a mild sweet person would not be improved by makeup of the eyes. But only the most restrained makeup would do for that type.

Carelessly applied mascara makes you look far more artificial than dyed hair and too much rouge. To apply mascara, after you have chosen your shade, use a clean brush. Dip it lightly into the color and wiggle it better results in going over your lashes twice than doing it heavily once. It is much like enamelling your nails with liquid enamel. Two delicate coatings are much better than one heavy one.

When applying, hold the eye steady, to keep from blinking, and take the little brush that has been dipped into color and brush up and out from the roots of each single eye lash.

When the first coating has dried, apply a second coating very lightly. This will last much longer than a single, heavy application.

If you brush the lashes up and back, with each stroke of the application of mascara, they will appear much longer and curl back in that alluring manner that all women crave. Curly lashes, thick lashes—what appeal these terms have to women!

Last, but not least, you must put a fine line of your eyebrow pencil across your lower lid. Or you may use mascara on the lashes here too. But it is a rare woman who needs eye shadow, eyebrow pencil, mascara and a line under the eye, on the lower lid.

You must choose your own best eye makeup. Some women get it with shading and eyebrow pencil. Others depend on the mascara eye lash to turn the trick. Decide what you want to do about your eyes. You should experiment until you really know what to do.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "CAPRICORN"

If January 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 7 p. m. The critical period is from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m.

Astrological indications of January 18th point to a day of comparative calm, in which, if little be accomplished, there will be no serious errors to regret. The evening, however, promises to be full of excitement, and an event may happen which will seriously affect the course of your life.

A child born on this January 18th will either swim on the crest of the waves or sink. It will never float. Mediocrity will never distinguish it. Much more so than in the average case, will this child depend for success on its early environment and surroundings.

As a youngster, if you were born on January 18th, you gave great promise. Your disposition was winsome. You applied yourself with assiduity to your studies. You were never slouch at sports. You were popular and your infantile ideals were high. Past performance predicted for you success and triumph, yet you have not fulfilled either other people's expectations or your own. Ever since you have been so to speak "on your own," you have misused your freedom and independence, and today, although there is still a glimmering of former hopes and early ambitions, you have lost your will-power, and you drift.

You possess an attractive personality. You, however, use it to get things done for you. Instead of going them yourself. Your intelligence is undimmed, but you do not use it. You moon your time away, instead of being "up and doing." You lack initiative and purposefulness. You have allowed yourself to become mentally flabby, and are not disposed to take the necessary "daily dose" to get yourself back into normal condition.

You could have accomplished so much, yet have achieved so little. With it all, however, you have not lost your charm, nor have you said a final "good-bye" to all your ideals. In your home life, your conduct is characterized by gentleness and tolerant sympathy. In spite of everything, you retain the love—if not the respect—of those who know you best.

SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE BORN January 18th:

- 1—Daniel Webster—Statesman.
- 2—Charles P. McIlwaine—P. E. Bishop of Ohio.
- 3—Richard Yates—Statesman.
- 4—Walter Satterlee—Artist.
- 5—Ethel Low—Ex-President of Columbia University.
- 6—Vign Verheersle—English actress.

RULING BLOW TO DAIRYING; AGENT HOLDS

Gus Sell Advises Farmers to Write Washington
Seeking Reversal

A recent ruling by David Burnett, commissioner of internal revenue, is going to mean another serious blow to the dairy industry, and the oleomargarine interests will profit greatly, according to Gus Sell, county agent, who is urging Outagamie county farmers to register their protest. Mr. Sell is asking farmers to write their protests to Washington in an effort to have the ruling rescinded.

On Nov. 12, 1930, Mr. Burnett, commissioner of internal revenue ruled that unbleached palm oil free from artificial coloration when used in substantial quantities in relation to the other ingredients, may be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine otherwise free from artificial coloration without subjecting the finished product to tax at the rate of 10 cents per pound.

"If this ruling is not rescinded it will be a terrible blow to the dairy business," Mr. Sell said. "W. F. Jensen of the American Association of Butter Manufacturers says 'If this ruling by the commissioner stands, I believe the American farmer will be compelled to sell his butter at a lower price around 17 to 20 cents a pound.'"

The approximate wholesale prices on, according to Mr. Sell:

Refined soy bean oil 1 1/2 and 1 1/4 cents a pound.

Refined palm oil 8 and 8 1/2 cents a pound.

Refined coconut oil 7 1/2 and 8 cents a pound.

Tax on soy bean oil is 3 1/2 cents a pound, and on coconut oil 2 cents a pound, except from Philippines which is free of duty. Palm oil is admitted free of duty.

Mr. Sell is urging everyone interested in the future of the dairy industry to get in touch with the commissioner at once as well as with their congressman and senators, and protest against the ruling. These letters he says should be addressed to:

"Hon. David Burnett, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C."

Senators, Robert La Follette and James J. Blaine, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C."

Congressman, George J. Schneider, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C."

Farm organizations are being asked to adopt resolutions asking that this ruling be rescinded, Mr. Sell said. Copies of these resolutions should be sent to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, D. C. and to Senators John J. Blaine—Robert La Follette and to Congressman George J. Schneider.

BIRTHS NEARLY DOUBLE DEATHS DURING YEAR

Births during 1930 almost doubled the number of deaths. There were 641 babies born, and 327 deaths. Marriages totaled 168.

July, with 70 births, was the heavy month for babies, while May showed the greatest number of deaths in one month, 33. There were 55 births each month in February, March, August and September, 57 in December, 54 in April, 55 in May, 51 in January and October, 44 in June and 41 in November. Thirty-one deaths were recorded in April, 29 in January and November, 23 in September, October and July, 27 in February and August, 25 in December, 24 in March, and 18 in June.

June was of course the big month for marriages, although August closely followed the June record of 29.

With 24, May had 23 marriages, October and November 16 each, September, 14, December, 13, July, 11, February, 8, April, 7, and January and March 4 each.

A total of 530 burial permits were issued by Dr. F. P. Doherty, city physician, during the year.

Cowl Neckline

2893

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON

Romantic and charming perfectly expresses today's tunic frock.

It's demurely flattering with its quaint puffed elbow sleeves and softly draped bodice in cowl effect.

It's slenderly fitted through the hips and emphasized by the pointed treatment that is length giving.

The circular cut of the tunic and the under skirt is cleverly handled in low placed fulness.

Black canton crepe is stunning for this model, enlivened with white at neckline.

Style No. 2893 comes in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Black chiffon is lovely for Sunday night occasions.

Flat crepe in plain or print is charming for immediate and later Spring wear.

Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 39-inch with 3 yard 39-inch contrasting and 1 1/2 yards 39-inch lining.

Our Large Fashion Magazine shows how to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, etc.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

WIDOW APT TO MAKE MISTAKE OF TOO HASTY SECOND MARRIAGE.

My Dear Virginia Vane: I am a widow, and have one child five years. I have been a widow for almost a year and have now had an offer of marriage from a very kind man whom I will call R. I am fond of him but he is not my ideal, and will never take the place of my lost husband. R. is fond of my child and treats him well. But when I admitted that I was considering marriage, I found out that R. proposed to live in rooms with me and my child, and to let his house (which he owns) be rented. This would mean discomfort and poverty for us. If we are to live in the style which he describes. I don't know what to do. I feel that I ought to take an offer of marriage for my child's sake, but do not want a dreary life.

M. M.

It would be folly of you to marry this man. In the first place, you don't really love him. In the second place you're marrying him far too soon after your husband's death.

You haven't had time to get adjusted to your widowhood. You haven't had time to become reconciled to things. You're plunging blindly ahead, determined to have a man in the house again. I determined to be Mrs. Somebody. You feel that only by marrying once more you can return the state of affairs to normal.

Well, you'll find that there are worse things than not being married at all. There are worse things than loneliness and heart-ache over a bereavement.

There is nothing more cheerless than an existence with a man one does not love—particularly after you've known real love and real happiness. There is nothing lonelier than lack of understanding between yourself and the man you've married—especially when you once had an entirely different sort of relationship with another man.

If you were in desperate need, and R. was going to lift you out of poverty into pleasant affluence, you might feel tempted to accept him for the child's sake. But actually it would not seem that your baby was going to benefit hugely by the change in his mother's marital affairs.

Wait a while. Don't jump at the first chance of marriage. Don't

The Story of Sue by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

It was Bob whose rickety old second-hand car with its yellow doors and painted instructions was turning into the long driveway at Harry Becker's. Corinne watched amusedly from the plane of wisdom which she had suddenly gained. But she noticed that there was something determined in the set of the face of the boy at the wheel.

Bob was 17. He was taller than she was. But men never grow up. They always had bruises to be bound and people to spoil their faith.

However, she knew that she did not want to see Bob now. She couldn't be bothered with irrelevant details. He had no part in this tragedy of hers.

She rang for the maid. "I'm not home to anyone, Marie. Tell Bob that I've gone into town . . . to see Sarah Slade."

The use of that name would make the story more convincing. But why shouldn't she go to see Sarah Slade, she asked herself? She had to go some place. And Sarah would understand. She was human enough to know how easy it is to be involved hopelessly and carelessly. But she wouldn't go yet . . . not until Bob was out of sight.

"You're sure Mrs. Becker isn't here?" She heard Bob's voice at the door. "It's important, awfully important. Couldn't I wait for her?"

"She may not be back until evening. It's here a message!" The maid's tones were suave and cool.

"No, except that I must see her. It's really important this time."

"He's discovered that I kicked his old instructor out and wants to tell me what's happening. I'm through with . . . everything." Corinne persisted stolidly in her thoughts. "I can't see anyone!"

She waited until Bob's car had been gone for twenty minutes before she put on her gay rust dress with its bands of black fur and the small rust hat that matched it. Then she slipped into the big raccoon coat whose long gray and black fur was proof enough of its expense. The black suede gloves and pocketbook and slippers and come from the town's most expensive shop. Pulling on her gloves Corinne reflected that she would not have charge accounts any more. She was through!

She parked her car in front of Sarah's and made sure that her bags were locked and securely in the back. Then she went in.

Sarah's voice answered the buzz and told her to come up, and Sarah was waiting at the open door. It was late afternoon now, and a gray rain had started to fall. It was splashing against the windows and there were no lamps lighted in the room. Corinne noticed that the cushions on Sarah's couch, usually so gay in their orange and gold madness, were crumpled as though somebody's face had been buried in them.

"Come on in, Corinne. T'llight up," Sarah's voice was friendly and eager, though. She pulled the chain in the rose lamp on the reading table, the smaller ones that dotted the room, and the shining balloons shone through the dim grayness. Then she straightened the cushions, and came back to a stool by the fireplace, and poked the embers into a blaze.

"What do you mean about?" Corinne asked. "Who told you that anything was wrong?"

"Nobody," Sarah flashed her quick, impulsive smile. "But anyone would just have looked into your face to know that you've broken your favorite doll or lost your circus ticket."

Corinne opened her mouth to answer but the lump in her throat wouldn't let her. Her head went down on her hands and a sob shook her slender shoulders.

She didn't stop until Sarah's bell buzzed again.

NEXT: Sarah Slade has a caller. (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

Imagine that any husband will settle your problem for you. You must find the right man now, just as you did when you first married. And you must remember that it will not do your child any good to take him to a better home where there is no love.

You and your baby will be happier alone than living under the same roof with a stranger who is simply a good meal-ticket and nothing else. Think twice before disturbing the peace of your life, even though it seems now to be a lonely sort of peace.

BLUE-EYED PEGGY: You seem to have hopped out the situation for yourself. There isn't any real reason for the girl friend to be angry since you are all young, and if the young man in the case hadn't fallen for you, he would have fallen for somebody else and broken her heart temporarily anyway.

She ought to be glad that she found out in plenty of time what a fickle young dog he was. And you might point this out to her. Certainly you should continue going with him, since you are all at the age when love is a pretty game and nothing much more, and it would be ridiculous of you to try to make this boy and girl nonsense a serious triangle drama.

Tary to make peace by offering to introduce to the offended lady as many attractive swains as you can possibly meet. The first time she meets a nice boy at your house and ramps him away from you, her cup of happiness will be full and all talk of war will cease.

$52,596 GIVEN IN PENSIONS TO MOTHERS IN '30

Report Shows Increase of $10,000 Over Amount
Spent in 1929

Mothers' pensions granted by Outagamie-co during 1930 totaled $52,596.60, an increase of about $10,000 over 1929, according to a report prepared by Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer. In 1929 the county paid out $42,599.30 in mothers' pensions. Miss Ziegenhagen's report is to be submitted to the state board of control.

Despite the fact that there was more than $52,000 last year, the county board, last November appropriated only $50,000 for the work this year. Under the state law the county is to receive one-third of the amount it pays out for mothers' pensions in a refund from the state. However, the state paid only $781.73 in 1929, when one third of the total spent by the county was about $14,200.

There were mothers' pensions granted to 156 mothers with 598 children during 1930. The mothers' pension system is administered by County Judge Fred V. Heinemann and the county board poor relief committee.

Miss Ziegenhagen's report also shows that old age pensions granted during 1930 totaled $23,831.50 as against $19,145 in 1929. The state refunded $6,361 to the county on old third set by law.

TWO RIVERS IN SLIM 18-17 WIN OVER KAUKAUNA

Victors Overtake Kaws in Last Quarter, Win in Overtime Period

Kaukauna—Overcoming a lead held throughout a hard fought game and tying the count a minute before the end of the regular playing period, Two Rivers high school cagers defeated Kaukauna 18 to 17 in an overtime period last night. Kaukauna scored first and led until the final minute of play. In the overtime period Elliot was allowed two tries on a foul, scoring one of them.

The game opened at a furious pace. VanLieshout made the first marker and at the end of the first period Kaukauna led, 6 to 2. Koch was getting the jump at center and the Orange and Black team easily pierced the defense of Two Rivers, but missed numerous tries at the hoop. Stanul, who was expected to star for the Rivermen, netted only two baskets. Coach Paul Little had Schwidnerman on him, and he failed to get away. He made his points while Schwidnerman was taken from the game temporarily.

Two Rivers gained one basket in the second quarter, making the count 10 and 8 at the half time period. Both teams were playing a tight defensive game which kept the scoring down. VanLieshout was the outstanding player for the local quintet, netting four baskets and a free throw. Elliot, who won the game for Two Rivers, put three baskets and two free throws through the hoop.

Kaws Hold Lead
Kaukauna held its two point lead throughout the third period, which ended 14 to 12. The two teams both began to play an offensive game. The Rivermen displayed plenty of class and their floor work showed the results of good coaching. Their lead in the last quarter and two minutes to play began to stall. This trick did not work out so well with the result that one of the opponents got possession of the ball and scored a basket with about a minute left to play. In the overtime period one free throw was made by Elliot to win the game.

In the preliminary game the high school B team lost to Freedom high school, 17 to 14.

DIVER HELPS TO PRODUCE PICTURE

Tom Owen, Veteran of Deep Sea Work, Aided Directors of "The Sea God"

For twenty-two years, Tom Owen has been cheating the ocean of its toll.

Owen is a deep sea diver. Because of the under-water pressure which usually strains the heart and weakens the human system, the average working life of the diver is five years. Owen has been following his profession for twenty-seven consecutive years.

Now the man who refused to heed the law of average is bringing his skill to the aid of the audible screen, acting as technical adviser for the under-ocean sequences of Paramount's new feature, "The Sea God," which is playing today only at Warner's Appleton theatre. Those who attend the 10:00 p. m. performance tonight will also see a preview of "Hell's Angels," the four million dollar super production—both these pictures will be presented tonight for the price of one.

Owen, who makes his headquarters at Los Angeles harbor, had charge of the diving equipment used in the production. He also is personal instructor to Richard Arlen, who plays the scenes that were filmed on the floor on the Pacific.

The veteran diver passed on the locations selected for the under-ocean action. His judgment on the safety of weather conditions was vital and it was his responsibility to inspect all equipment and okay it before Arlen and the photographer who operated the submarine camera went under water.

Owen has been 240 feet below the ocean's surface and for a number of years held the diving depth record with that figure. His average working depth for the twenty-seven years has been 125 feet.

Fourteen hours is the longest period he has been under water. On that occasion, wreckage of a submerged vessel fell across his life-line and he was forced to work for hours extricating himself.

"JUST IMAGINE" NEW MOVIE TONE

Picture Is DeSylvia, Brown and Henderson's Successor to "Sunny-side Up"

DeSylvia, Brown and Henderson, creators of the most successful picture of 1929, "Sunny Side Up," have surpassed that great production with "Just Imagine," a new Fox Movie Musical comedy novelty, according to glowing preview reports from Hollywood.

"Just Imagine" serves to bring a new star into prominence in the person of Maureen O'Sullivan, the beautiful little blue-eyed Irish colleen with the wistful smile, who scored so sensationally in John McCarey's "Song of Mary" and "Will Rogers' 'So This Is London'."

"Just Imagine" is a spectacular departure from the usual in talking pictures. The entire story is projected fifty years into the future, with only one "hold-over" from the modern age in El Brendel, the premier Swedish character comedian.

John Garrick, the leading man, is in love with Maureen, but owing to the peculiarity of the marriage laws of 1930, his rival, Kenneth Thomson, has been successful in winning the girl. However, Garrick has the right of appeal, which he takes.

His friend, Frank Albertson, consoles him the best he can. Frank, however, is too much in love with Marjorie White to understand anyone else's love troubles. Marjorie is Maureen's closest friend.

They have provided a group of great song numbers for this picture; numbers which may prove even more popular than the popular numbers in "Sunny Side Up."

Patricia Butler, who was the directorial reason for "Sunny Side Up's" success, served in a like capacity on "Just Imagine."

THRILLS, LAUGHS IN OAKIE PICTURE

Jean Arthur Supports Him in "The Gang Buster" at Fox Theatre

For once, in a screen career that hair-raising dramatic action, Jean Arthur is "laughing with fear in her eyes." She is Jack Oakie's sweetheart in the hair-raising blarney hit, "The Gang Buster," showing Thursday and Friday at the Fox Theatre, in which every thrill is a laugh.

If you've been reading the papers, you've some idea of the kind of company the grin and chin boy keeps in his new starring picture, but you've no idea of the fun he gets out of it until you see "The Gang Buster."

Oakie undertakes the highly precarious job of selling accident insurance in a city infested with easy-money desperadoes. Everybody wants Oakie's policies, except the insurance company for which he works.

Oakie's attentions to Jean draw him into the dangerous situation, which is further complicated by the deadly rivalry between Boyd and Francis McDonald, another gang member of the rival. To gain control over Morris, Boyd kidnaps Jean, informing the lawyer that the girl will be returned only when Morris hands over the incriminating evidence he held. Oakie sets out to rescue the girl.

Here's comedy encased in melodrama. Oakie tears into the underworld for a riot of button-popping fun. Oakie days are here again—a daze of rapid-fire action comedy-melodrama.

A. Edward Sutherland, who put Jack through his paces in "Sap from Syracuse" and "The Social Lion," has proved his ability at getting the most out of the joy boy. And Percy Heath, co-author of "Let's Go Native" and "Safety in Numbers" wrote the story especially for the gay grinner.

USES BANDIT HIDEOUT TO MAKE THIS FILM

Not one single scene in the Trem Carr production, "The Land of Missing Men" was shot in the studio. All the interior scenes used in the pictures were taken right on location which was situated at Vasquez Rocks, an isolated bandit stronghold thirty miles from all civilization.

J. P. McCarthy, writer and director of this story, took his complete company of Western stars to the Rocks and they set up accommodations in this rough section of the country, using cabins and tents for living quarters.

"The Land of Missing Men" is a Tiffany Western presentation featuring Bob Steele and a great cast including Al St. John, Ed. Dunn, Emilio Fernandez and the famous ex-bandit, Al Jennings. The picture is showing at the Elite theatre today and Sunday.

Strange Pictures And Vaudeville Coming To Theatres Next Week

VAUDEVILLE NOW OFFERED AT FOX DURING WEEKENDS

Stage Acts at Local Theatre Are Inaugurated at Today's Program

Stage vaudeville was inaugurated at the matinee today at the Fox theater as a regular feature for Saturdays and Sundays in addition to the screen programs.

Especially selected acts will comprise the stage shows, and will be known as Fox Unit vaudeville. An entirely new vaudeville and screen show will be introduced each Saturday and each Sunday.

Mickey McCloskey, well known Appleton musician, has been selected as director of the Fox orchestra, which will furnish concert interludes and musical accompaniment for the acts, it was learned from E. M. Sizer, manager of the theater.

Today's vaudeville program is exceptionally well balanced with refreshing comedy, awe-inspiring dancing and delightful music predominating.

The featured artists include Jess Libonati, who is recognized by leading critics as the world's premier xylophonist; the beautiful Joyce Lando, brilliant dancer, with a company of capable assistants, in a resplendent revue, "Dancing Ala Carte"; and Brooks and Williams, an engaging pair of comedians, who create a riot of laughs in their skit, "All in Fun."

"Danger Lights," spectacular railroad romantic drama, starring Louis Wolheim, Robert Armstrong and Jean Arthur, is the ace attraction on today's screen fare.

A wide variety of entertainment is promised in Sunday's vaudeville program with the Ray Gordons, talented entertainers, in novel diversions; Ullis and Clark, distinctive funsters in the skit, "Vaudeville as You Like It," written exclusively for them and Lapo and Lee, skilled acrobats and comedians.

The screen version of the famous New York and Chicago success, "Lover Come Back to Me," starring Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore, will be the feature attraction next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Appleton Theatre. It is a Fox Motion picture drama of intense interest and directed by Berthold Viertel, depicting adventures of a beautiful girl and a young man who struggle against the menacing influence of another.

It is an amazing story of life in a speakeasy background. Dorothy McKaill portrays the leading feminine role and Milton Sills appears as the male lead.

Producers Claim It as One of Most Lavish of Screen Enterprises

"HELL'S ANGELS" the most lavish screen enterprise of all time will open a five day engagement at the Appleton Theatre with a midnight preview tonight.

This great production will be presented tonight in conjunction with to-days regular feature, THE SEA GOD, both pictures may be viewed for the price of one by those attending the last regular performance tonight.

The spectacular air thriller was produced and personally directed by Howard Hughes, president of the Caddo Company, at a cost of $4,000,000, and took three years to complete. Filming of "Hell's Angels" began October 31, 1927, following six months of preliminary research and preparation. Shooting proceeded steadily for nearly three years, with 18 months alone devoted to aviation and Zeppelin sequences.

Ben Lyon and James Hall, principal players in this stupendous drama of air-war, are supported in the feminine department by Jean Harlow, a comparatively unknown actress who appears in her first screen role in "Hell's Angels."

Producer-Director Hughes, himself an expert licensed pilot, has established a record for all time in motion picture extravagance in the filming of his air classic. On air scenes alone he has expended nearly $2,000,000, and the total distances covered in the sky battles was exactly 227,000 miles.

More than 20,000 extras were employed in the various mob scenes of the picture. Total cost of "Hell's Angels" approximates $4,000,000.

MAGAZINE COVER SERIES IN FILMS

"Sandy" and "Lil" the famous characters of the Liberty Magazine cover series and story by J. Leslie Thrasher, come to life in "For the Love O' Lil," the Columbia comedy drama of modern married life coming to the Appleton theatre on Monday for three days.

This series has caused nationwide comment. For the past four years it has been telling a serial story on the cover of Liberty Magazine. The appeal this series made on the public was phenomenal. First because of the novelty. No magazine had ever done anything like it before. Second, because of the human interest of the pictorial story.

The desire to see this series on the screen had been expressed by many of the followers. They saw in it potentialities for an intensely human film of great appeal. Their desire has at last been gratified.

Columbia has brought this series to the screen on a pretentious scale. It has been extravagantly staged and superbly cast. The stars chosen to interpret the lovable characters of Sandy and Lil are Elliott Nugent and Sally Starr. Others in the cast are Jack Mulhall and Margaret Livingston.

Appears in "Hell's Angels"

Jean Harlow, featured in "Hell's Angels" which will be presented at the midnight preview at Warner's Appleton Theatre at 11:00 p. m. tonight and for five days starting tomorrow.

"MAN TROUBLE" NEW STORY OF SPEAKEASY

Presented on the talking screen at the Appleton Theatre by a cast of unusual brilliance, "Man Trouble" will be the feature attraction next Thursday and Friday. It is a Fox Motion picture drama of intense interest and directed by Berthold Viertel, depicting adventures of a beautiful girl and a young man who struggle against the menacing influence of another.

It is an amazing story of life in a speakeasy background. Dorothy McKaill portrays the leading feminine role and Milton Sills appears as the male lead.

LIBERTY COVER SERIAL NOW COMEDY IN FILMS

A popular feature which has been entertaining millions of readers of Liberty Magazine for more than four years is the feature attraction next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Appleton Theatre. It is "For the Love O' Lil," the film adaptation of Liberty Magazine cover serial and story by J. Leslie Thrasher. It has been brought to the screen with a cast of stellar proportions. Sally Starr and Elliott Nugent play the title roles. Jack Mulhall and Margaret Livingston play roles in support.

Chapter 29
SURRENDER

ON the floor below Fanny lived a young married couple and a small boy of 8 or 9. Fanny had smiled at the child as she passed him on the stairs and one evening soon after her interview with Mr. Philbrick the youngster came to call.

"I'm Mrs. Oliver's little boy and we all think you're awful pretty," was his introduction to Fanny.

"That's very kind of you," smiled Fanny, "and what is your name?"

"Ellsworth Sherman. And I'll punch anyone's nose who calls me Elly." He was quite at ease, roamed about Fanny's room, his sharp dark eyes appraising her belongings.

"Ellsworth Sherman," repeated Fanny, wondering why his last name wasn't Oliver. He continued the amenities.

"My mother's divorced. Dick Oliver is my stepfather. He brings me candy and eats it up himself. My real father can run any kind of automobile there is. Are you divorced?"

"No," said Fanny quickly. "What a pretty tie that is."

"My mama gave me that. But you're separated from your husband, aren't you?"

Fanny swallowed, stared miserably at her small inquisitor and recognized the futility of trying to head him off.

"Yes," she said as man to man, "but I don't like to talk about it."

This was received with blank amazement. Questions evidently trembled on the tip of her visitor's tongue but he remembered his manners and heroically suppressed them.

"My father's an illustrator," he went on, determined to put Fanny at her ease. "Dick's an illustrator too, but he doesn't make much. My father couldn't get married this summer because he had to help us out. But now Mama's got a job and he's going to."

What a terrible child. And yet his thin pale little face was faintly appealing.

"The next time my father sells a picture he's going to get me a bicycle," Ellsworth went on. "That is, if Ada lets him. Ada is the girl my father's going to marry. She gave me a steam engine on my birthday. Dick says she's all apple-sauce now but we'll see a change once she's married. Dick's awful afraid Ada won't let me stay with them half the time like the judge said I was to."

"I'm sure your mama will be awfully glad if she won't," said Fanny warmly.

"Well, of course she and Dick haven't been married but five months. I suppose they do get tired of me sometimes." The small brown face was suddenly wistful.

There was a hard lump in Fanny's throat.

"I know your mama never gets tired of you," she said positively. "And if you go to stay with your father I know she will count every day until you come back."

Her caller's face brightened.

"She says I'm to come to dinner every week with her and Dick. She says she doesn't know which she loves best, me or Dick. And next to us she loves my father. They're not like my Aunt Bessie and her first husband. They fight so we can't have them for dinner together. Do you fight with Mr. Frost?"

"No," said Fanny hastily. "Would you like to look at some of my books with pictures in them?"

"Not particularly. I'd rather talk. Dick says I talk too much. Do you think I do?"

"Not at all," said Fanny weakly. A few minutes afterward Ellsworth's mother came for him. Fanny had expected something rather awful, but found Mrs. Oliver small and dainty, sweet-faced and low-voiced, with big pansy blue eyes and yellow curls shingled close to her head.

The following week Fanny came home from work too tired to go to the corner cafeteria for dinner, and made herself a cup of tea over an alcohol lamp. About nine o'clock she was roused by a rap and found Mrs. Oliver at her door. She was in a blue green evening dress and a little frilled white apron, flushed and excited.

"Oh, Mrs. Frost, will you do me a great favor?" she asked.

"Why, of course, if I can."

"It isn't very hard, I hope. But I'm giving a dinner for my ex-Ben Sherman, and his fiancée, Ada Atwood. I have the George Feltons (she named an illustrator whose clown-like drawings were enjoying a tremendous vogue). We've been waiting an hour for Ada, but her roommate just called up and said she was sick. The party will be a flop unless you come down and take Ada's place. Won't you, please?"

It was a windy winter's night; Fanny's room was cold. Appetizing odors of steak and onion, mingled with the aroma of coffee, had drifted Mrs. Oliver's footsteps up the stairway. Fanny hesitated, allowed herself to be persuaded, dressed hastily and went down.

The Olivers' apartment boasted a small bedroom, in which Ellsworth had been put to bed, a kitchenette, and a combination studio, dining and living room.

The famous creator of Felton clowns was a little fat man with an incongruous bulle' head and outstanding ears. Fanny had read that he made $100,000 a year, and that this wife was his second, to whom he had decently returned. (Imagine David's scorn and contempt.)

It was a thoroughly successful party. Fifteen courses. Dick Oliver played a jew's-harp. George Felton sang, in a nasal tenor, lugubrious cowboy songs, which for some reason were excruciatingly funny.

That evening long remained a joyous memory to Fanny. But as she climbed the stairs to her room an old ache came back. She had got over missing David, recovered entirely she thought from a stabbing loneliness when she was tired or frightened or awakened in the night. Now she found herself longing persistently to share the fun of the evening with him.

David, however, would never have approved of the Olivers. He would have been disgusted at the tangled status quo.

Fanny was a little shocked herself, but she liked the Olivers and Ben Sherman. Yet her heart ached for the little boy. Some way, she could not have explained just why, she felt vaguely sorry for them all.

Later Fanny asked herself what a child, reared in such a casual atmosphere, would think of marriage when he grew up. If Mrs. Oliver fell out of love again and married a third time, would she love Mr. Oliver next best to her new husband? And where would Ellsworth and Ben Sherman come in? If one took marriage lightly--got divorced without any real cause--followed every beckoning fancy--why shouldn't a woman have half a dozen husbands, and a man a dozen successive wives? And if they all remained friends, and all went to parties together and had children by the marriage and that, where would it all end?

That night Fanny made up her mind to fight no further for Sheila. Whether she liked the Brownbergs or not they were not cheap. They had a permanence. One could build on the foundation they had laid--Sheila must so build.

There had been no dignity in her fight, no real excuse for smashing her marriage. She could see it now. It was right that David should have Sheila.

The panic of the decision was as if it went apart soul and body, but an uplift too came with it. Her shrill apprehensiveness went dead and emitted her to a sense of eternal regeneration that brought in time a certain peace of its own.

The divorce went forward on well creased wheels. There was no contest and David was granted his freedom on the grounds of abandonment, with the custody of his minor child. Fanny had taken back her maiden name. There was no longer a Fanny Frost.

David's uncle, Judson Brownbeck, died three days after the granting of the divorce.

Tomorrow Fanny finds a new happiness--and a new friend.

Appleton Cagers Beat Marinette, Take Undisputed Lead In Valley

ORANGE SHOWS POWER TO BEAT PURPLE QUINTET

Rallies in Third, Fourth Periods After Northerners Nearly Tie Score

FOX RIVER VALLEY LEAGUE

West Green Bay	0	2	.000

FRIDAY'S RESULTS
Appleton 25, Marinette 16.
Oshkosh 14, Fond du Lac 11.
Manitowish 14, Sheboygan 13.
East Green 11, West Bays 10.

BY GORDON R. MCINTYRE
Appleton high school basketball team displayed a bit of the sport as the quintet can play it last night during a part of the third and fourth periods in a game with Marinette and chalked up its third straight win in the valley conference, 25 and 16. Manitowish and West Green Bay quintets were the first two victims of the Orange.

The Orange takes undisputed possession of first place in the conference loop by virtue of its victory, Fond du Lac having been shunted into the defeated column by Oshkosh which won 14 to 11. Manitowish knocked Sheboygan off the top by virtue of a thrilling 14 and 13 victory.

Although the final score for the Orange gave the team a goodly majority, things were not always that way last night. The Sheldonsmen led all the way but at one stage in the game the northern squad trailed by only three points and Coach Shields was wearing the paint off the boards as he squirmed about.

The game opened slow with Appleton controlling the ball but refraining from shots until set for close tosses at the hoop. The result was that the score at the end of the first period stood 3 and 1 for the Appleton team, one goal and a free toss. There was a bit more activity in the second quarter and when the teams went to the locker rooms at half time the score board showed 8 and 3 for the Orange. Marinette having failed to tally a basket.

Change Defense
When the third quarter opened, Marinette came onto the floor with a changed defense and Appleton ran the count to 13 and 3. At this point the northern squad found the hoop and made its first field goal when Leason counted a short shot. That failed to alarm the Orange basketballers but when Poligase made the count seven and Nickel shoved it to him with a long shot, and Appleton still had those 13 points, the aspect of the whole matter changed to deep gloom.

Em Morrell eased the Orange followers a bit when he lofted a shot to make the score 14 and 9 and about that time Bill Peotter began a rampage and counted two field goals in rapid succession to put his team out in front. Collins then set the house in an uproar with one of his best southpaw tosses and the score was 20 and 9 for the Appleton five.

The boys were in the fourth quarter when the latter two goals were caged and increased the score to 21 and 9 with about five minutes to go. Here Coach Shields inserted a couple substitutes and after Marinette had scored a free toss saluted Coach Shields' tactics by tossing a field goal and then another free throw to make the score 21 and 13. Appleton scored another field goal and free throw before the game ended and Marinette counted with a field goal.

Miss Free Throws
While the Orange showed ability to toss field goals last evening they shifted a great number of free throws and thereby missed a chance to tally a larger score. Marinette had 11 fouls called on its players several good for two shots but the Orange counted only five times. Marinette likewise was off on free tosses but Appleton of course profited by that.

Appleton had 11 personal fouls called against it and one or two technicals. It was the most misdeed-mans chalked against the Orange in a game this season and revealed a tendency on the part of one or two of the boys to try little tricks when are all right if they succeed but which may be costly when they don't. Handling of the ball has not improved over the West Green Bay game and comes nowhere near the precision shown in the Manitowish fracas.

Iowans Invade Wisconsin

The three Rs of University of Iowa basketball—Alexander Rogers, Julian Reinhardt, and Marshall Riegert—are among the Hawkeys who are preparing to meet the University of Wisconsin tonight at Madison.

Rogers, sophomore center from Iowa, is the leading scorer of the team. He is the physical superior or his team mates and best ball-handler. Restricting heavy scorers of the Badger team will be among the duties of Riegert and Reinhardt, guards. The Iowa invaders will be led to Madison by Coach Rolfe Williams, one of Wisconsin's nine-letter athletes.

JONES ENTHUSIASTIC OVER NEW BALL
It seems almost that nothing short of actual tests is going to convince the average golfer that the new larger and lighter ball is really a better projectile for him to use than the one with which he is now struggling. Everyone who has any qualification to speak on the subject has tried to say how it is easier to get up from a close lie and how insignificant the loss of distance is in actual play, but still you hear a lot from the fellow who thinks that it is going to ruin his game. The effect of the new ball is going to be far reaching, but I believe that the 99 per cent who really matter are going to thank their stars that they were more or less forced to make the change.

I feel that I have not given the new ball a sufficiently thorough test in actual play to be able to analyze its properties with a fair degree of accuracy. What golf I have played since the amateur, I have played with the new ball, and I think I know it pretty well. Further than that I have been at some pains to learn the reaction of the club members to its adoption. Will you believe me when I say that although I have heard a lot of golfing from people who have never played it or who have used it on one or two rounds, I have yet to find one person who has given it a fair test who does not express himself delighted with the change.

Public Pessimistic
Too much has been said about the difficulty of this ball. For some reason the pros are scoring a bit higher with it than they did with the old one. A certain amount of concern has been aroused in the masses because some of the winter tournament winners have actually been a stroke or two above par for the four rounds. I wonder what really is expected of these capable gentlemen and the ball when it is pointed out with such emphasis that so-called results of the atrocious aggregate of 287 strokes—think of it—only one under four—to negotiate seventy-two holes of a first class golf course in a real tournament. All I can say is that if they can do that with the ball as it is right, they ought not be permitted to do any better. But I see that George Von Elm and Jack Forrester tied for the lead after the first round at Los Angeles with 68s. That looks like

BADGER HOCKEY TEAM DOWNS MICHIGAN, 2-0

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin today made its second hockey victory of the season, having defeated Michigan 2 to 0 in a fast contest before 3,500 spectators last night.

The Badgers made both counters in the first period. Gallagher took a pass from Mielekoff and slipped the puck past Goole Tompkins after thirteen minutes of play. Five minutes later Captain Bill Mielekoff took Stogals' pass after a mad scramble, to score again.

Wisconsin carried the fight into the Michigan zone during the second period, but sensational saves by Tompkins prevented scoring. Heavy penalties against the Badgers gave the Wolverines the edge in the final period but they were unable to make their chances count.

NATIONAL SKI MEET AT CARY, ILL. SLIDE

Chicago—(P)—Carter Olsen of Canton, S. D., won the national ski championship tomorrow on the Cary, Ill., slope, according to the first half of a race which was held last night. Olsen's time was 1:10.4. Olsen is expected to retain the title. He won last year, but is expected to lose it to a rival from the West. Olsen is a member of the national ski team and is a member of the national ski team.

SKATING EDITOR GLOOMY AS SPRING WEATHER RETURNS

Medals and Cups for Annual Winter Event Will Be Shown Soon

BY THE SPORTS EDITOR
It was along sometime yesterday afternoon when the Skating Editor walked into the editorial rooms with a face a mile long and singing a mean Blues. Honestly, he looked just like the gloom that's coming when we get the rain storm that has been due since last July sometime.

"Look at there," the Skating Editor groaned, "the weather has gone spring again and with it has gone all the ice in town. How the kids and young folks going to get out and stretch about and skate a couple miles so they can enter my races? 'Course I like warm breezes and I suppose everyone else does, but the boss says the races gotta be run and that's that."

And then the Skating Editor slumped off and sat down in a corner to groan to anyone who would listen.

So I've taken my trusty typewriter in hand to tell skaters something that will be very interesting to them. The medals for the skating tournament arrived yesterday and they certainly are fine trophies. Along with the medals came the cups that will be awarded the senior men's winner, girls' champ and the winner of Post-Crescent championship races.

One of these days the medals and cups will be put on display for the skaters and then they'll see what really nice awards they are going to receive.

The Skating Editor says that entries for the races are coming in better every day but that there is room for many more. Many of the veteran performers of other years have given up the speed sport to play hockey or to take things easy. That leaves the field wide open for younger skaters and they really should take advantage of it.

Come on, skaters, bring or mail that entry blank. Let's see if we can't cheer up the gloomy bird that handles the races.

NEW LEADER SHOWS WAY AT AGUA CALIENTE MEET

Agua Caliente, Mexico—(P)—A new leader was in the picture today at the 62 remaining contestants in the $10,000 Agua Caliente open golf tournament came to the final 18 holes of play.

Wilfred (Wilky) Cox, professional from the Wyke Beach municipal course, Brooklyn, N. Y., was a stroke to the good over his closest competitor.

His third round of 69, three under par, put him in front yesterday, and the score established a new competitive mark for the hazard-strewn par 72 layout. Rounds of 75 and 71 on the previous 36 holes made his total 215, and allowed him to pass Johnny Golden, Sturdy Noroton, Conn., professional.

Johnny led at the end of the first and second rounds, but he slumped yesterday with a 76, after shooting 70 and 73 on the previous rounds, giving him 219 for second place.

NORWEGIAN MISS IS OUT OF SKI TOURNEY

Chicago—(P)—A bright-eyed blonde beauty from Sweden looked over a snowless city today and sighed over the springlike weather that kept her from lending a feminine touch to the national ski tournament at Cary, Ill., tomorrow.

She is Anna Grete Landberg of Dalarn, Sweden, who four years ago was amateur woman skiing champion of her native land where a ski title means something. She has taken part in many tournaments at St. Moritz and Devois. Tourney officials had planned to let her enter a special 10-mile handicap race against the best of the men contestants, but have abandoned the plan because no snow fell.

LAWRENCE FRESHMEN PLAY RIPPON YEARLINGS

Lawrence college freshman basketball team will go into action for the first time against a Big Four freshman squad Tuesday night when it meets Rippon frosh at Alexander gymnasium. The game will be played as the preliminary to the Lawrence-Rippon varsity game.

Four contests have been scheduled for the frosh. They will play a return game at Rippon and will play the Carroll and Beloit yearlings five. The frosh are under direction of Coach Enar Tangen.

Blue Streaks To Battle Neenah At Jones Park

Appleton Blue Streaks of the Fox River Valley Hockey League will resume league work Sunday afternoon when they meet Neenah's Red Wings at Jones park rink. The Streaks are leaders in the valley loop with two wins in as many starts. The triumphs were chalked up at the expense of Fond du Lac and Oshkosh teams.

The Red Wings and the Streaks have been booked to meet no less than twice in the last month and in each instance the game has been postponed because of bad ice. Managers of both clubs are hoping they get a break from the weatherman this week and he lets them perform.

Appleton sextet has shown itself the class of the league so far. The team has won every game played this winter, having a decided edge in all phases of the sport.

COLLEGE HOCKEY SIX BEATS J. C. C., 7 TO 1

Chamber Sextet Invades Waupaca Sunday to Play at Winter Carnival

Lawrence college Collegians, a hockey team composed of the pick of hockey players on the Vike campus and the Junior C. C. team of Appleton, tumbled last night on the Jones park rink and the Collegians won a sweeping victory, 7 and 1. Poor ice slowed up the game and the Collegians displayed a lack of teamwork that was made up in individual play. The game was the first for the college players and the second for the J. C. C. six.

John Hansen was the star for the college six, getting a majority of the goals. Others who got their names in the scoring column were Bob Roemer, Appleton, Don Herschleb, and Jimmy DeCock. Other members of the Vikings were Dasset, Scott, Forish, Wallick, Hoan and Charley Wolfe. The Collegians would like to play any of the amateur teams in the valley, and games can be arranged by writing Charles Wolfe, Delta Iota fraternity house, or telephoning 1651.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce team, the Collegians' victims last night, was organized a short time ago and Sunday afternoon is booked to play at Waupaca, according to Bill Cool, manager. The battle is scheduled to start at 2:30 and will be the feature attraction at the city's annual winter carnival.

The Waupaca team defeated the J. C. C. six several weeks ago but practice and several games in the meantime has left the Appleton six confident it can come through tomorrow. The team is scheduled to leave for Waupaca at 1 o'clock.

Manager Cool intends to use Holterman at goal, Cool and Cox at center, Sorensen, Falk, Jannaphin, and Grace at wings, and Hayes, Laird and Vein Holterman at guards.

Pirates a tonsil-less ball team

Pittsburgh—(P)—The Pittsburgh Pirates think the reason they didn't finish higher in the National league race last season was because their tonsils were not so good. And if they're right, the boys point out, they should be out of the healthiest teams in the land this year.

Look who's had 'em out. Pitchers—Heinie Meine, just reinstated after quitting the game because of ill health; Ervin Brame, Andy Bednar, Charley Woods, Steve Swetonic; catcher—Hal Finney; infielders—Pie Traynor, George Grantham, Gus Suhr and Harry Geisberger; outfielders—Paul and Lloyd Waner.

JOHNSON STARS AND RIPPON BEATS KNOX

Rippon—(P)—Coach Red Martin's Rippon Redmen defeated Knox college in a Midwest conference game here last night, 39 to 36. Rippon led at the half, 16 to 11.

Glenn Johnson, Redmen pivot, was sensational as he sank nine goals and four gift shots. Strawbridge, Knox pivot, collected 14 points.

Hornsby Expects To Be Second Baseman For Cubs

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright 1931
NEW YORK—(P)—Rogers Hornsby has announced his intention to try to play second base in 1931. In fact he will play that position until he is driven to the bench by injury. He says his ailments of 1929 have left him as far as he knows.

This is encouraging news for the Chicago Cubs. Hornsby is not the best second baseman who has ever played baseball, but in recent years he has been the best executive leader at second base in the United States. His presence on a team is in itself a guarantee of success. The most direct critic of big ball playing in the country, he is also a man from whom spring comes that bring out the best in other players.

It was his personal try that helped the St. Louis Cardinals team to win their first pennant in 1926, when he managed the team. He dominated the players from the time they arrived at St. Louis to train. He made up his mind early that he had a team which could win a championship and he told the players in straightforward fashion that if any one of them did not think the team would win the pennant, he did not want him on the team.

Wants a Title
Hornsby went ahead with that team and never permitted one of its members to forget that he belonged to an organization directly plucked by that a great batter of the strength should have a physical failing. Football did that for him.

HEENEY LOSES TO MAX BAER BY WEIRD AWARD

New Zealander Knocked Out of Ring; Mixup in Counts K. O.s Him

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK—(P)—Jack Heene, in his modern role of referee, managed to get himself into more weird jams than he ever did as a fighter.

The old Manassa mauler was third man in the ring of Madison Square Garden last night when "Tom Heene" was knocked from the ring in the third round of his ten round match with Max Baer and then was counted out when he least expected it and least needed it.

Old Tom had cuffed the cocky California youngster around the ring in the first two rounds, charging in with both fists flying and generally making it embarrassing for Baer. The third round had barely got under way when the two fighters got themselves all tied up in a wrestling match along the ropes.

Heeney Into Press Box
A few light punches sent Thomas off balance and he sailed through the ropes into the press box. Apparently unhurt, Tom clambered back into the ring and rested on one knee, all set to take a little time to get his bearings before resuming the struggle.

The knockdown time-keeper, Arthur Donovan, momentarily forgot he had counted two while Heeney was outside the ring, and counted up to eight. Then Donovan remembered, added eight and two and found they made ten, and waved Heeney from the ring.

There was nothing Dempsey could do. He was just as surprised as the 8,000 cash customers and Heeney at the queer ending of the bout in which the veteran New Zealander had put up a much better fight than anyone had expected him to.

Dempsey was in the ring the night Otto Von Becker and Phil Scott clashed for charity and Scott went down in agony and crying "foul" from punch to the hip. On Thursday night Dempsey refereed a bout at Newark which ended in a foul and it was only a few days ago that he felt called upon to vallop a judicially-banned wrestler down in Texas.

Primo, Uzdunin Kept Out
Heeding a warning from the New York State Athletic commission that suspended fighters and managers are not permitted in licensed boxing arenas, Garden officials had "spotters" posted to keep out among others, Primo, Gomez and Paulino Uzdunin, both of whom are under ban in this state.

The Garden, already at odds with the commission because of the recent signing of Max Schmeling and Young Stribling for a heavyweight title fight in Illinois, apparently was unwilling to risk any violation of the commission rules.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

New York—Max Baer, Livermore, Calif., knocked out Tom Heene, New Zealand (3); Marty Gallagher, Washington, D. C., and Paul Swiderski, Syracuse, N. Y., drew (10); Stanley Porela, Jersey City, knocked out Tony Starr, San Diego, Cal. (2).

Chicago—Danny Delmont, Chicago, stopped Young Terry, Davenport, Ia., (5).

San Francisco—Hal Roberts, Denver, knocked out Jimmy Owens, Tulsa, Okla., (2).

Lakewood, Fla.—Joe Flynn, Indianapolis, outpointed Joe Blanco, West Palm Beach, Fla., (10).

Okmulgee, Okla.—Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., knocked out Fred Reese, Pittsburg, Kas., (3).

San Francisco—Santiago Zorilla, San Blas, Calif., drew with Frankie Kliek, San Francisco, (10).

Sports Question Box

Question—If there is a ground rule in a game and the runner advances beyond the base to which the ground rule entitles him must he be sent back?
Answer—The runner must always stop at the base to which the ground rule entitles him, unless there is a new play which permits him to advance.

Question—Where did Lou Little the Columbia coach play football?
Answer—At Pennsylvania.

Question—In the eight inning the score is tied 2-2, with two out. There is also a runner on first base. The pitcher is taken out and the first batter to face the new pitcher makes a three base hit, scoring the runner from first base. The game finishes 3-2. Who is the losing pitcher?
Answer—The first pitcher who put the winning runner on first base.

Question—Do you think the fans would approve a rule depriving Mickey Walker of his middleweight title?
Answer—Yes. Mickey has not bothered much about the 120 pound title. He has been ordered to defend his title by the National Boxing Association or suffer loss of his crown. He is under suspension in New York. This would make the ruling effective.

Question—Who coached Notre Dame team when Knute Rooks was a player?
Answer—Jesse Harper, an excellent teacher.

LATE SELLING BRINGS STOCKS TO LOW LEVELS

Trading Slackens After Early Rally and Losses Appear Toward End

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York.—(AP)—The stock market skidded in the last half hour of trading today, and closed around the week's lowest levels.
The slow rally of the previous session continued during the first hour, but trading slackened so close to a standstill that professional traders itching for action dropped heavy selling orders in the late trading, and the list closed with a weak tone, 1 to 4 points lower. Transfers for the two-hour session were only about 650,000 shares.

Chemicals were again under pressure. Allied broke 4 points, and DuPont and Air Reduction, more than 2. Westinghouse Electric and Vandalia lost 2, and issues closing a point or more down included U. S. Steel, American Can, Eastman, Goodrich, American Telephone, American and Foreign Power, General Electric and American Smelting. National Biscuit was a firm feature, closing up a point.

The market recorded numerous temporary gains of a point or more, during the early trading. The rally displayed great strength, presumably reflecting brokerage house gossip to the effect that a favorable decision on valuation is expected from the interstate commerce commission shortly.

Announcement of a price reduction by Ford Motor Co., may have been a factor in the selling, although such a move was not unexpected, and E. I. du Pont, in making the announcement, took the precaution of looking ahead, saying that reports from dealers and branches throughout the world "lead us to believe automobile business will show a steady improvement."

Furthermore, advance reports of prospective operating schedules in the Youngstown area next week indicate further acceleration of activity in the steel industry, particularly branches serving the automotive trade. Output in the Youngstown area is expected to start the week at 48 per cent of capacity, a gain of 4 points.

The threadbare rumor of an early resignation of Secretary Mellon again appeared, but it was too weak to affect the bullish influence of oil, and has been denied by the market developed decided heaviness.

The weekly mercantile reviews said the more cheerful feeling in industry was being maintained, and sales and cold weather were making for a fair volume of retail trade.

Railroad bonds profited from a good demand. St. Paul 5s, Erie 5s of 1915, Northern Pacific 4s, Vandalia 5s, and Frisco 4s were among the legal investments that displayed a strong tone. Bonding out into the advance in Southern Railway 4s which were up more than a point yesterday.

There was some irregularity in the utility group which has had strong competition this week from a large volume of new offerings. American Telephone 5s of 1960 was slightly lower and International Hydro Electric 6s turned reactionary but strong tone. Bonding out into the advance in Southern Railway 4s which were up more than a point yesterday.

United States governments, the strong feature of the week's movement, were heavy and sold slightly under their high prices for the current advance. The further recovery in Richmond of 6s stood out in the stock privilege group. The bonds rallied to 54, to wipe out the 11 1/2 point drop that followed the receiver's ship.

WEAKNESS OF RADIO
HITS ENTIRE LIST
Chicago.—(AP)—Firmness gave way to reactionary tendencies on the Chicago Stock exchange today. Drives on Grigsby-Grumow and Majestic unsettled the market, and price lost most of yesterday's recovery. Trading developed considerable volume on the decline.

Grigsby and Majestic were subjected to heavy liquidation, with Grigsby equalling its record low of 23, and and Majestic selling at a new low of 31. Insull Utility showed good resistance to pressure at 34, and Middle West was firm at 20.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES
New York.—(AP)—Foreign exchange was irregular. Great Britain in dollars, other in cents. Great Britain demand, 4.85 7/32; cables 4.85 11/32; 60-day bill 4.85 1/8; France demand 2.91 11/16; cables 2.91 1/8; 60-day bill 2.91 1/8; Germany demand 2.91 1/8; cables 2.91 1/8; 60-day bill 2.91 1/8.

CHICAGO POTATOES
Chicago.—(AP)—U. S. Department of Agriculture reports 74 per cent of crop 174, total U. S. shipments 340,000 bushels. Trading slow, 15¢ to 16¢. Heavy, 15¢ to 16¢. Medium, 15¢ to 16¢. Light, 15¢ to 16¢.

BADGER POTATOES

LIVESTOCK PRICES UP AS WEEK ENDS

Hogs and Lambs Average 25 Cents Higher Than Last Week; Cattle Lower

Chicago.—(AP)—Closing prices in the livestock market for the week found hogs and lambs strong to 25c higher than last week, as the result of lighter receipts, and fed cattle steady to 25c lower.

Continued demand for light hogs today, in line with the active close of the day before, took the 5,000 head on 34¢ today at steady prices in a brisk trade. Choice 150 lb. underweights sold at $8.25 at the outset, while a few plain grades weighing 120-150 lbs. sold at 7.90-8.10. The scale of process stands 15c higher than the close of last week, when the top was 8.10. Heavy butchers, which far exceeded hogs in the supplies for the week, ended at a top of 7.75, against 7.50 a week ago.

Early advances in the steer market this week, due to an urgent demand for feeders, which made lower grade shortfords scarce, were wiped out later when the market turned stagnant, and final sales stood even with the close of last week. The week's top of 13.50, paid for yearlings, was an isolated sale. Medium weight steers reached $13.25, and heaves, 12.25, but kinds selling above 11.50 in any weight were scarce, and light heifers over the scales at $5.10-11.00. All she stock closed with losses, ranging from mere weakness, incoincidentally, to 50c lower, in the case of light heifers. Better grades of feeders sold at 7.00 up to 10.25, the latter price for 30-60 day corn fed, that had been shipped here for slaughter.

Cutting off the supply of lambs in the last days of the week, producers were able to revive the lamb market, and quotations at the end of the week showed a strong advance, the last week-end trading at 11.00-11.50, against 10.50-11.00 yesterday, which was even with the top of Friday last week. The advance appears in the range for the bulk of lambs, including fat kinds, which was 8.00-8.75 this week, against 7.50-8.50 a week ago. Receipts this week were 18,000 head, compared to last week.

FOR ALL PURSES AND PALATES

A food store the lean purse does not shrink from,
The careful purse is at home in,
The fat purse rejoices in—

A food store the hungry flock to,
The dainty appetite finds satisfaction in,
The plain eater revels in—

A food store with everything at its best,
That charges for everything the least,
That makes shopping a pleasure—

A meeting place for all purses and palates,
For all appetites and all capacities—
